Money Lent
If Russia Got Really Mad
We Still Seek Witches
Sugar and Yeast Make Whiskey

—By Arthur Brisbane—

LOS ANGELES, FEB 11—The New York Chase National Bank is to be congratulated on making a loan of eighty million dollars to the Cuban government. Our nation lent millions to European nations using the money to kill each other. It is fortunate that we have private bankers sufficiently intelligent and progressive to help finance a near neighbor and good friend that will use the money constructively. It is a good loan Cuba is an immensely rich country and her people are honorable.

Mexico imitates Britain raiding private offices of the Russian government in Mexico City, seizing papers, etc. As in the case of British raiding, Russia protests violently against the "unspeakable violation of diplomatic rights."

At present Russia's protest is not important. But later flying machine development might make it important. Russia could resent such incidents by sending raiding parties, through the air, striking at great population centers of other nations. Retaliation by the other nations would be difficult. Russia is made up chiefly of 200,000 villages. Bombing 10,000 of them would produce no decisive effect.

Moscow and Leningrad amount to little as cities, and attacking them would not mean much to Russia. But if you destroyed Paris or London you could subdue France or England. And if you destroyed New York you would convince some boyish bankers that their foolish loans to the czar were not as important as they thought.

Moderns smile, reading of the great Alexander traveling over desert wastes to consult a soothsayer, and never suspecting that the lady had been told in advance what the conqueror wanted her to say. But desire to consult the future, through any kind of witch, from Endor to Los Angeles, a craving for the impossible still exists among us.

Mrs. Mary Stewart, who lives here, says she gave Mrs. Blackburn $25,000 to help her carry on the work of "The Divine Order of the Royal Arms of the Great Eleven."

And Clifford Dabney gave $5,000 to the same worthy cause. Mrs. Blackburn, you must know, has in her possession the "sixth sent." When that is spoken everything will be revealed. Who would not pay $45,000, or $45,000,000, to know everything, assuming that he could know what it was all about when he heard it.

Jeans, the astronomer, says if the universe could be explained to us accurately, it would be more incomprehensible to us than it is now, as though you explained differential calculus to a hop-toad.

Mr. Dabney surely got his $45,000 worth. It is testified that, thanks to Mrs. Blackburn he saw wonderful visions, including one of Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy walking down Broadway. The witness did not say whether it was Broadway, New York, or Broadway, Los Angeles, but it was probably the latter. Too many speakeasies near Broadway, New York.

The federal grand jury, at Springfield, Ill., accuses two great corporations of conspiring with bootleggers to break the law. Bootleg whiskey calls for yeast and sugar. One of the two corporations makes sugar, the other makes yeast—that is their business and it is legal. They sell it to anyone that will buy.

This emphasizes the difficulty of prohibition enforcement. The laws of chemistry and of nature work to produce alcohol, even manufacturing it inside the body of the loyal prohibitionist, after he swallowed his sugar in innocent, non-alcohol form.

If, however, the corporations have knowingly supplied bootleggers, and wilfully connived at the breaking of the law, prohibition enforcement may reach them, and should do so.

Failure to reach an agreement concerning the Boulder Dam improvement shows the need of a change in control of any water power that possesses national importance. The various states interested in the Colorado river act in good faith, as to those congressmen, EACH seeking to protect its citizens' interest. Meanwhile the water and power go to waste unused.

It is as though a family of children, inheriting a great estate, should let it lie idle indefinitely through failure to agree on a division. The nation is interested, and unselfish. And the nation should settle all power and water disputes when states fail to agree after a reasonable time. The settlement might not be perfect, but it would put an end to foolish waste.

Hughes Attacked by Dill in Senate

HUB PROHIBITION CORRUPTION DENOUNCED BEFORE CONGRESS

SAYS HUGHES' VIEWS PICK U.S. POCKETS

Dill Declares Defeated Candidates Should Not Be Put on Bench

Washington, Feb. 12 (INS)—A Democratic-Insurgent coalition, greatly outnumbered, assailed the economic views of Charles Evans Hughes in the Senate today in a vain hope of preventing his confirmation as chief justice.

Senator Dill (D.) of Washington, opened the third day's debate on Hughes by charging his confirmation would help to tax the American people "hundreds of millions of dollars" because of his economic views on the valuation of public utilities.

Dill protested against the appointment of chief justices from the ranks of men defeated for the presidency.

ON LINCOLN'S BIRTHDAY

He first called attention to Lincoln's birthday anniversary.

"What a coincidence! The Senate spends this anniversary of the greatest champion of human rights since Christ walked upon the earth to debate the propriety of confirming as chief justice the greatest champion of property rights of our time" said Dill.

"Mr Hughes believes in the doctrine that property rights are supreme and while it makes him all the more effective, to me it makes him all the more objectionable.'

He insisted the Senate had a right to Judge Hughes' economic views.

"The views of Mr. Hughes are just as important as his legal ability," Dill added. "Since the Supreme Court, as part of its jurisdiction, has seen fit to go into the question of valuation of public utilities we have a right here to look into the economic views of Mr. Hughes.

PICKING PEOPLE'S POCKETS

"It is our duty, because the Supreme Court, by writing into the law of the land its views, has enabled corporations to pick the pockets of men and women of America of hundreds of millions of dollars in higher fares and higher rates.

"The increase in cost of living can be directly traced in some instances to the decisions of the Supreme Court.

"I cannot believe it a necessary

Girl Sobs for 67th Hour

Attleboro, Feb. 12—Miss Violet Michael, 18, had sobbed almost continuously for 67 hours at 2 o'clock today.

Additional efforts to check the girl's sobbing were made today by Dr. Earle R. White, her family physician, and Dr. Harvey Sanborn, a Providence specialist, whom he called to his assistance.

After slight relief from administration of an emetic, the spasmodic contraction of the diaphragm, which the girl cannot control and which had weakened her materially, resumed. Although her life is not in danger, according to the physicians, her condition is regarded as serious.

Miss Michael is able to eat at regular periods. She also got 3½ hours of sleep early in the morning.

The young woman's mother returned from New Bedford, but the girl could not stop sobbing.

POPE OBSERVES ANNIVERSARY

Vatican City, Feb. 12 (AP)—Pope Pius XI celebrated the eighth anniversary of his coronation this morning by attending at a solemn high mass in the sistine chapel. The mass was sung by Cardinal Locatelli, the first prelate raised to the purple by His Holiness after commencing his reign.

The pontiff wore the rochetto of rich Venetian lace which the Italian Government presented him yesterday, with a great white and gold mantle over all. Staccato cheers, "Long live the Pope! Long live the Pope-King!" greeted his appearance on the sedia gestatoria, borne on the shoulders of bearers in brilliantly colored livery through the four great walls leading to the chapel.

A Te Deum and thanksgiving service were sung this afternoon at St. Anne's Church in the Vatican City and the new building of the Pia Pontificia school was blessed in honor of the coronation.

TWO FIREMEN INJURED; ONE NEAR DEATH

Capt. Dinin, Ladder 26, Dying After Five-Story Fall at Mountford St. Blaze

Two firemen were injured, one probably fatally, a number of persons were partially overcome by smoke, and two were carried to safety at fires in the Back Bay, North End and South End today.

The dying man is Capt. Richard Dinin of Ladder 26, living at 26 Haynes pk., Roxbury, who is at City Hospital with a fractured spine, and possible fracture of the neck and skull.

Hoseman Charles O'Brien of Engine 6, living at 39 Holmstead st., Roxbury, is at Haymarket Relief Hospital with lacerations and contusions to head, face and body.

Capt. Dinin was injured when he fell five stories from the roof of an apartment block at 119 Mountford st., Back Bay, while battling flames which raced through the building.

He was directing the work of firemen on the roof when he lost his footing and slipped over the edge, plunging to the yard in the rear. His cries brought Patrolmen George Smith and Frank O'Reilly of the Back Bay station, who carried him to an ambulance.

The fire was discovered by Davi Patterson, occupant of a first-floor suite, who ran upstairs to the third floor, where he found Mrs. P. G. Tilton also trying to trace smoke.

The flames burst through the door of a vacant apartment and Mrs. Tilton and Patterson ran

4000 'BLIND PIGS' THRIVE IN BOSTON, IS CLAIM

Author Liggett and Chairman Graham Startle the Repeal Hearing by Listing Dry Ills

Washington, Feb. 12—The most startling charges in the history of prohibition were made regarding conditions in Boston and Massachusetts today as the long-heralded congressional battle to repeal the 18th amendment opened before the House judiciary committee.

They were voiced by Walter W. Liggett, "Bawled Bostonian" author, who was recently a witness before a federal grand jury in Boston as a result of his muckraking article.

Liggett charged wholesale corruption of the Boston and Massachusetts State police forces and accused a Bay State ex-governor, an ex-secretary of a governor and commissioner of public safety with violation of the dry law and the sale of confiscated liquor.

"4000 HUB SPEAKEASIES"

Terming the corruption "unparalleled even in the office of the commissioner of public safety," he told the committee that it is backing a general hearing on several bills and resolutions seeking repeal of the prohibition amendment.

The hearing is the first in Congress in a decade of prohibition on the question of dry law itself.

Liggett was the only witness today and the committee recessed until tomorrow.

"Before prohibition there were 1000 open saloons in Boston," Liggett said. "Now there are 4000 open speakeasies and 15,000 purveyors of liquor. They carry on with police connivance.

I TOLD GRAND JURY

This corruption has touched higher-ups, even ex-governors, ex-secretaries of governors and commissioners of safety who have sold confiscated booze. Vice is rampant in Boston.

"I presented these facts to a grand jury and I think the grand jury will return indictments."

Liggett testified before the grand jury in Boston on January 24 and was dismissed subject to recall. While he talked freely before his appearance, he made no statement afterward, and U. S. Attorney Frederick H. Tarr said at that time: "If any statement is made it will be made by the jury."

Liggett startled the committee by asserting that the Governor of Michigan, chief of police of Detroit and chief of the state police attended an all-night debauch in a road house outside Detroit on the evening of Nov. 5 and morning of Nov. 6, 1929.

The liquor was furnished by Denny Murphy, a gambler, and unclad girls danced, he said.

"Did you have proof?" interrupted Rep. Michener.

The statements I make are criminal libel and I will furnish the proof if called upon but I will not be called upon," said Liggett.

The witness also said if there were "ten more years of the prohibition law, this Government will be ruled by that time by a gang of underworld rats and crooked politicans."

In response to a question, Liggett declared the dry law was essentially unenforceable.

Liggett recently engaged in an expose of Washington liquor conditions and also appeared before a District of Columbia grand jury. The jury which investigated conditions generally returned only a few indictments.

He denounced conditions in

Board Again Rejects McLaughlin, Conry

Despite Mayor Curley's reappointment of Edward F. McLaughlin as fire commissioner and Joseph A. Conry as traffic commissioner, they stand rejected by the civil service commission, that body notified the Mayor today.

The commission will reopen consideration of their appointments, however, if the Mayor submits new evidence relating to their qualifications, Commissioner Elliot H. Goodwin stated.

This the mayor is expected to do as he is insistent that both men occupy the positions for which he chose them.

In the cases of James E. Maguire as institutions commissioner and Joseph A. Rourke as public works commissioner, Goodwin says, the commission will proceed to a completion of its investigation without delay.

He further informed the mayor that a legal question has arisen over the appointments of Theodore C. Haffenreffer and John J. Martin as park commissioners, due to the provision in the law and city ordinance providing that one of the commissioners "shall be a landscape engineer or an architect of not less than five years' experience."

"The commissioners are in doubt," the letter reads, "whether or not this provision of the ordinance is in effect at the present time, but have been informed that the provision has been observed in the past. Mr. Robert S. Peabody, an architect, having served for years, and later Mr. Charles A. Coolidge, architect.

"They therefore respectfully request that you will obtain a ruling from your corporation counsel in relation to the ordinance."

19 INJURED IN TRAIN CRASH

Chicago, Feb. 12 (INS)—Nineteen persons were injured, nine of them seriously, when two Chicago and North Western Railroad trains crashed here today. Many others were shaken and bruised.

An entire coach was demolished and two other cars were smashed as the rear coach of a train backed into an incoming suburban train from Aurora at the terminal. The empty coach crashed into the third car of the other train. Three cars were derailed. Police ambulances, rushed to the scene, removed the injured to an emergency hospital.

PLANS AIRPORT EXPANSION

Boston proposes to expand its airport facilities so that within five years the city will take the ascendancy in aviation development in the country Mayor Curley today informed the Legislative Committee on Harbors and Public Lands.

The Mayor was urging the committee to report favorably on a bill to authorize the state department of public works to lease Boston an additional 40 acres of mud flats in East Boston to enlarge the airport.

Senator Henry Parkman, Jr., sponsor for the bill, said the purpose was to enable the city to increase its facilities sufficiently to obtain a class A rating from the federal department of commerce, and to provide more accommodations for seaplanes.

The Mayor pictured the day when great structures of steel and concrete would be built in Boston devoted to American industries doing a sizable export business.

U. S. May Neutralize Philippine Islands

London, Feb. 12 (AP)—The American delegation announced officially today that no proposal regarding neutralization of the Philippines had come to the attention of the United States representatives.

The announcement was made by Hugh R. Wilson at a press conference in St. James' Palace in response to questions regarding reports in the United States that a plan to neutralize the islands was under consideration.

Unofficial expressions in the American delegation were to the effect that such a plan, if found necessary, might be included in a bilateral Japanese-American treaty after the naval conference ends.

However, there has been no discussion of the question between the Americans and Japanese.

Heads of the national delegations to the five-power naval conference in series of meetings beginning at once, it was understood today, will lay their total tonnage cards on the table and state their minimum naval needs.

LOMBARD IS DOG RACE WINNER

Laconia, N. H., Feb. 12 (AP)—Roland Lombard, 18-year-old Raymond, Me., boy, today won the 96-mile New England Sled Dog Club handicap race when he finished the third 30-mile leg in 2 hours 43 minutes 25 seconds.

Lombard, however, had a 33-minute handicap on each of the three days of racing. Today's handicap reduced his time to 2 hours 10 minutes 25 seconds, and gave him a three-day net total of 6 hours 32 minutes. His net time was 15 minutes better than that of Georges Chevrette of Quebec.

Chevrette had a 12-minute handicap. His time today was 2 hours 24 minutes 30 seconds. His time allowance gave him a three-day net total of 6 hours 47 minutes.

London, Feb. 12 (AP)—Lady De Freece, the former Vesta Tilley, note male impersonator and idyl of London music halls, has been gravely ill for some time at Monte Carlo.

Her husband, Sir Walter De Freece is now en route to London, where it is believed he will hand in his resignation as a member of the House of Commons on the ground that he must devote all of his attention to his wife.

AUTHOR LIGGETT TELLS CONGRESS HUB HAS 4000 SPEAKEASIES

CHARGES LOCAL OFFICIALS USE RUM THEMSELVES

Washington, Topeka and Wichita, Kans., and in Minnesota.

Liggett said the figures are not less than 700 speakeasies running day and night in the District of Columbia and not less than 4000 bootleggers.

MUCH RUM IN CAPITAL

He said he had made a study of prohibition conditions throughout the country for the last eight months.

Liggett estimated that 1,600,000 gallons of hard liquor were being consumed in the District of Columbia each year, and that six million gallons was the minimum amount of home brew that is made annually.

In opening his statement to the committee, Liggett said he not only had voted for the dry law but had supported the drive law at the time of its adoption with considerable expense in his own purse. He said he felt that statewide prohibition laws would measurably improve conditions.

However, he added, I believed then and still believe in local option.

In Minnesota he asserted he had experienced opportunity to compare conditions as they are now with what they were before the enactment of the state law. He explained he has worked in different activities in the three largest Minnesota cities and that his work had taken him on trips through the state at that time.

"With all respect for Mr. Volstead," he said, "I know conditions in Minnesota better than he does."

Liggett asserted he had no brief for the saloon and did not want its return. He insisted, however, that before prohibition, taking the District of Columbia as an example, there were 300 legally licensed saloons and their proprietors obeyed the regulatory laws. At that time he said, the money found it very difficult if not impossible to obtain liquor in a saloon and young girls, he said, could not get in.

TRAFFIC GROWS

Liggett said he had the facts to prove that after ten years of prohibition arrests in Washington for drunkenness trebled, and every form of law violation had increased in the national capital.

Referring to Detroit, he said he had been informed that the narcotic traffic had increased to such proportions in that city that a total of $22,000,000 was spent annually.

He said there were 20,000 speakeasies in that city and that this had been ascertained through a census taken by the police at the instigation of the mayor of Detroit.

Arrests for drunkenness in Detroit, he continued, had almost doubled within the last 10 years while crime was on a great increase.

The witness said that Detroit is in the grip of gangsters, racketeering policemen and politicians.

Liggett told the committee that as men of sense and observation you must have seen these things and must have known about them.

MORE DRINKING THAN EVER

"Throughout the length and breadth of the land today," he continued, "in cities and on the farms there is more hard liquor being drunk and under worse conditions than before prohibition."

Swinging his attack to the State of Minnesota where he said prohibition administration is under the direct supervision of Andrew Volstead, author of the dry act, he declared that conditions were at present speakeasy in the city of Minneapolis.

Liggett then spoke of what he described as "beer farms." He said one was about 50 miles from Minneapolis and had been raided while he was in the city.

He added that high school boys and girls of Minneapolis had driven down there for "debauches."

"All of this is taking place right under the nose of Andrew Volstead," he asserted.

I believe that if you have 10 years more of prohibition the country will be ruled by underworld rats and crooked politicians," he said.

Liquor, he said, is the basis of all crime in this country.

Liggett said that about one-third of the prohibition force in Minnesota is honest. The other two-thirds, he said, are "nothing more than criminals."

He charged Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Lowman with attempting to suppress a showing of graft by one official in Minnesota. Lowman, he said, suggested that the man merely resign.

CITES PROHIBITION'S FAILURE

Chairman Graham at the outset of the session said the 18th Amendment and the enforcement law had been tested for 10 years without satisfactory results.

Today's hearing was given over entirely to those attacking present conditions under the prohibition act. The Drys yet have their story to tell.

A spectacular inquiry, extending over many weeks, with antis and drys exchanging vigorous blows and invoking the favorite of the entire field of the prohibition question was predicted. All who wished to be heard were promised an opportunity to speak.

A plan of procedure has been formulated by the experienced "wet" bloc of the House in cooperation with the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment. A long list of witnesses, including numerous names well known in the affairs of the nation, are to be heard.

Chairman Graham of the committee opened the hearing with the statement:

CITES EVILS OF THE LAW

Enforcement has left a train of consequences most deplorable and depressing to every patriot.

"Graft, bribery, and killings amounting to more than 1300 have resulted in the last 10 years from enforcement.

"One hundred and fifty-one citizens were killed by prohibition officers and 41 agents were killed by citizens. In one year were 77,551 arrests for violations, alleged or real.

"During the first year under prohibition there were 29,000 cases instituted, and during the last fiscal year there were close to 70,000.

"Should Congress reject a resolution proposing revision of the constitution, Graham added, then would be submitted to the states. In the event an amendment to the constitution should be submitted to the states, he said, it could be approved by the state legislatures or by a convention convened in each state if so directed by Congress.

"The convention methods, which would require delegates to be elected on the issue of amendment would furnish the opportunity for a referendum, as much desired and asked for," he said. "That method of ratification would abolish the only way a referendum can ever be had under the law.

Chairman Graham prefaced his statement by saying that seven resolutions, each containing a proposition to amend the constitution, were introduced in the House by seven different members and referred to the judiciary committee of which he is chairman.

The purpose also, he said, was for the committee to determine what constitutional amendment to report back to the House. Their adoption would necessitate a two-thirds vote in each house of Congress.

After that, he explained, three-fourths of the states must consent to make the change effective.

Drys Warn Public of "Deceiving Propaganda"

Washington, Feb. 12 (AP)—Wet advocates presented pleas for the modification of the liquor laws before the House judiciary committee today, but organizations opposed a statement which said no one should be deceived by the present flood of publicity and propaganda which was a success in principle and politics.

Judging by their noise during the sessions of Congress the wets are a great host," it asserted.

Judged by the number of their votes cast during the sessions of Congress or at the polls, they are a diminishing minority."

The statement added that the present methods of the wets are fanatical and un-American.

We are not deceived by the statement said in the sentiments expressed by the President and other officials that every citizen has a perfect right to agitate and move for the repeal of any part of the Constitution in a frank and open manner.

"But to seek the repeals of laws enacted to make the Constitution operative, or to seek so to modify such laws that would allow what the Constitution itself forbids, is nullification by indirection, which no loyal American will tolerate."

Packers Haven't Yet Obeyed Trust Decree

Washington, Feb. 12 (AP)—The Senate agriculture committee was informed today by Atty.-Gen. Mitchell that the packers had "never fully complied" with a consent decree under which they were to separate themselves principally in meat packing.

The attorney general added, however, that because of extensions of time by court order, the packers have not as yet been guilty of disobedience to the terms of the decree.

meetings and submitted a tentative total naval figure for France of something like 700,000 tons.

France's existing tonnage, according to French figures, is 712,000, of which 313,140 are in actual service with the remainder under construction or listed by Parliament.

Both the United States and Great Britain had insisted they must have parity with the French fleet or else could fix their own totals.

U. S. TALKS OF SUBS.

Col. Stimson, American chief, also discussed with MacDonald the figures for all categories. Stimson was understood to have reiterated the American demand for the right to build a 35,000-ton battleship of a type similar to that of the Rodney, in order to insure parity with Britain.

Japan, which has been in doubt about the issuance of a statement of naval needs similar to those recently issued by the United States and Great Britain, has announced one was in preparation which probably would be handed the other delegations today or Thursday.

The American delegation met this morning to work out the details of U. S. submarine policy for presentation before the conference committee of the whole.

Another development in American headquarters was that the delegation decided to stand firmly on its position that the unlimited categories, namely cruisers, destroyers and submarines, must be settled before the battleship problem is attacked.

Britain Will Not Scrap Any of Her Dreadnaughts

London, Feb. 12 (AP)—A. V. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty, told questioners in the House of Commons today that there was no question of Great Britain's scrapping any of her latest battleships.

Prime Minister MacDonald also told a questioner on proposals had been made in the naval conference by an foreign delegation that would entail the scrapping of battleships of Queen Elizabeth or Royal Sovereign classes.

The premier's reply was:

The answer to the question is decidedly in the negative.

In response to other questions, the first lord of the admiralty gave the number of 50 cruisers as necessary for the British Empire.

Japan Stands Firm in Its Demand for Cruisers

London, Feb. 12 (AP)—Tsuneo Matsudaira, member of the Japanese naval delegation, planned to meet Senator David A. Reed at American naval headquarters late today.

It was expected the Japanese delegate would present a written reply to Secretary Stimson's proposals that Japan accept a ratio of 60 per cent in heavy cruisers. The Japanese claim has been for 70 per cent and it was understood this figure would still be insisted upon.

Friday, at the corn and potato show at White Bear, Minn., the "Tri-County Pool Sons of Wild Jackasses" will be officially organized at all Westerners have been cordially invited to join.

At the meeting, called by H. Freeman of White Bear, a "wild mule auction," a keeper of the branding iron, a spavin specialist and other appropriate officers will be elected and the herd faced toward New Hampshire will present to the appropriate bray for benefit of Senator Moses.

Walsh Sees Double Protest in Bay State Election

Washington, Feb. 12—"The smashing political victory of the Democratic candidate in the Second Congressional District means two things," said Sen. David I. Walsh today.

"It is first and foremost the expression of a genuine resentment, deep seated and widespread, against present economic conditions.

"It is secondly, a protest against prohibition hypocrisy. The rank and file of the American people, irrespective of former political affiliations, are in revolt against the indifference manifest in high places toward the economic ills that are causing unemployment, crushing the small merchant and manufacturer and causing general economic distress."

Officials of Opel Works Declare Account of Trouble Is Exaggerated

Berlin, Feb. 12 (AP)—The Socialist newspaper Vorwaerts today stated that Communists led by a member of the Prussian Diet, today occupied the Opel automobile works at Russelsheim, destroying part of the machinery. The police were called.

General Motors has a controlling interest in the Opel works.

Russelsheim, Germany, Feb. 12 (AP)—General Motors officials today denied the existence of any serious trouble at the Opel works.

Two workers were dismissed, whereupon 150 men, described as Communists, dropped their tools today after parleys between spokesmen for the workers and employers. A satisfactory adjustment of the difficulty was reached, it was said.

The officials said there was no destruction of machinery.

JURY LISTENS TO DRUG EXPERT

New York, Feb. 12 (AP)—Representative Stephen G. Porter, of Pittsburgh, Pa., chairman of the House foreign affairs committee and sponsor of two bills for control of narcotic sales and treatment of addicts, testified as an expert today before the Federal Grand Jury investigating the narcotic traffic in New York.

Mr. Porter appeared at the invitation of United States Atty. Charles H. Tuttle.

Before going into the grand jury room he told newspapermen that "all our domestic laws for suppression and rehabilitation of addicts are useless because every student of the subject teaches the same conclusion. That the drug must be controlled at the source. When once the drugs are produced," he said, "they ultimately reach the consumer. The bulk is too large to be effectively smuggled in all Westerners have been cordially invited to join.

At the meeting, called by H. Freeman of White Bear, a "wild mule auction," a keeper of the branding iron, a spavin specialist and other appropriate officers will be elected and the herd faced toward New Hampshire will present to the appropriate bray for benefit of Senator Moses.

Bay State Democrats See G. O. P. Downfall

The anti-prohibition landslide that carried William J. Granfield to victory in the Second District congressional election Tuesday, and in many quarters today as the forerunner of Baby Volstead Act repeal and the election of more anti members of Congress from Massachusetts.

Too, the Democrats perfected to see in it the start of political revolution and the overturn of the Republican party in the Bay State.

Republicans and pronounced drys viewed the special election soberly and with little enthusiasm. Following are some of the comments:

Frank J. Donahue, chairman of the Democratic state committee: "An augury of what is to be expected in the coming election. Two issues defeated Mr. Griggs—prohibition and prosperity."

Ames L. Taylor chairman of the Republican State committee. "The Republicans did not go to the polls as usual. Little or no bearing on national issues or strength of Republican party."

Former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald: "The result shows that the people have risen against the leadership of the Republican party in the State and will make a change."

U. S. Atty. Frederick H. Tarr: "I am surprised at the large majority by which Mr. Griggs was defeated, but I don't feel that he was opposed by the dry element."

Beckenridge Jones, Constitutional Liberty League: "Positive proof that the people are more dissatisfied than ever before with the prohibition amendment and the Volstead law. Massachusetts is awakening."

Gen. Clarence R. Edwards: "Very, very significant. Desperate, fanatical opposition of drys has received a jolt."

Julian W. Codman: "This means that the vote for repeal of the Baby Volstead act next fall will be overwhelming."

Mrs. Elizabeth Tilton, prominent dry: "The district has invariably been wet."

Gen. Edward L. Logan: "The Hoover administration was on trial in this election and it has received a marked and emphasized rebuke."

Rep. Stobbs (R.) of Mass.: "The result seems to me to have shown clearly that dissatisfaction with industrial conditions has had its effect. Undoubtedly also divergent views on prohibition was a factor."

Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, of New York, who resigned, from the Republican National Committee: "The Democrat ran as a so-called wet and won. I notice that there was a stupendous women's vote. It is just a beginning of the revolt against prohibition."

Wins on Turnover

William J. Granfield, Democrat, running on an anti-Volstead platform, swamped Frederick D. Griggs, Republican, in the special election in the second Massachusetts-Congressional district. Granfield's 6000 and odd plurality represents a turnover of more than 7000 votes.

attribute for the office of chief justice to have run for President and been defeated.

William Howard Taft was the only beaten man who ever ran for President (when he sought re-election). Without any change in his economic views, he was made chief justice.

Now another defeated candidate who was decisively repudiated at the polls because of his economic views is made chief justice. Is not the will of the American people to be given any consideration?

"The man who tells what the laws mean must submit his record to the people just as the man who makes those laws," the Washington senator declared, and we are asked to vote for him because he is a fine gentleman. His great legal ability aside, it is the case when we remember his economic views. He was defeated at the polls largely because of these views.

"In the confirmation of a Supreme Court chief justice the Senate is more directly affecting the economic life of the American people than in enacting legislation."

GRANFIELD TO MAKE WAR ON DRY LAW

Democrat Sent to Congress in Second District Says Voters Demand Repeal

Springfield, Feb. 12—Riding into office on the crest of a tidal wave of anti-prohibition, anti-administration votes, Congressman-elect William J. Granfield, Democrat, today pledged his efforts toward modification of the prohibition amendment and the relief of unemployment.

His election in the normally Republican stronghold which lists former President Calvin Coolidge as its most prominent voter, had political and Republican leaders alike figuratively gasping for breath.

"I waged my campaign on the issues of prohibition and unemployment and the public reaction as indicated in the final result means that I must work my hardest to accomplish these aims," he said today.

"I feel very strongly that my election was due in large part to the dissatisfaction and discontent of the people with conditions prevailing under the 18th amendment and the Volstead law.

"My victory also indicates that the people of this district are disconcerted with unemployment and hard times.

"In other words there is every reason to believe that my election in a normally Republican district is in the nature of a protest against the Republican machine and the Hoover administration, based on conditions that prevail under the Volstead act and the present lack of prosperity throughout the nation.

"I stressed these points in my pre-election addresses and I am satisfied that they impressed the electorate in such an extent that the voters saw fit to favor me at the polls.

"There is no doubt in my mind that many Republicans, as well as Democrats, in all parts of the district voted for me as a protest against the Hoover administration."

Questioned relative to the issue of repeal of the Baby Volstead Act, which will come before the voters on an initiative petition at the state election next fall, the Congressman-elect replied:

"I'm for the repeal of the Baby Volstead act personally of course but it will be purely a state issue and I should not feel it necessary to do on the anti-prohibition question, in its national aspects, at Washington."

Granfield is 41, a native of this city, graduate of Williston Academy and Notre Dame College. A lawyer, an attorney in private life he has a large practice.

Granfield swept three Republican strongholds and took them all in, vote being 31,429 as compared with 25,918 for Griggs, in the cities of "regular" and Felker and Reid "bona fide" Republicans.

A score of unofficial Committees on Excuses and Explanations were on the job bright and early this morning. There was an excuse to suit every taste, but no hope that any of them would reach and overcome the country's final decision, which was that the district literally carved out and made to order for the G. O. P., represented by Frederic H. Gillett when the senator was Speaker of the House and further distinguished as the home of former President Coolidge had "gone Democrat" 16 months before the election of Herbert Hoover.

It was, in a word or two, a sweep, made by the "Solid South" in 1928.

Veteran observers of Massachusetts politics declared there had been nothing like it since 1910, when Eugene Noble Foss, later elected to the governor's chair, raised the banner of "Canadian reciprocity" and went down and took from the Republicans the old 11th, or Cape Cod, congressional district.

Granfield's Victory Hailed by Democratic Leader

Washington, Feb. 12 (AP)—The success of a Democrat in the special election in Massachusetts was interpreted by Representative Byrns of Tennessee, chairman of the Democratic congressional committee, as indicating resentment against the Republican administration "because it has failed to deal courageously and constructively" with the unemployment problem.

"For a Democrat to carry the Second Massachusetts District is a particularly striking victory for the party," Byrns said. The home district of former President Coolidge and of former speaker, now Senator Gillett, has represented it for nearly 30 years. It has had unbroken Republican representation for nearly 40 years and has been regarded as safely Republican at all times.

"When we consider that the late Representative Kaynor, Republican, won the district in 1928 by a majority of 8500, for a Democrat to have won it today by a large margin of votes must be accepted as significant."

WOMAN IS PRIME WORKER IN COFFEY-HUMBER WAR UPON CANCER

WIFE WORK ALL NIGHT T AID SCIENCE

Californian Discoverer of E tract Tells How They Firs Sought Cure for Angina

By GOBIND BEHARI LAL, Universal Service.

San Francisco, Feb. 12—Behin the arduous work against cancer that is being done by Dr. Walte B. Coffey and Dr. John D. Humbe there is the skilled assistance of a woman.

She is the wife of Dr. Humber She is an exceedingly important helper in the Coffey-Humber experimental operations of all kinds.

Mrs. Humber offered to devote all her energies to further the cause in which Drs. Coffey and Humber were engaged day and night. Her collaboration was found most useful. She soon became a clinician of no small adroitness.

Her efforts substantially lighten the high pressure that has descended upon Coffey and Humber, who have to perform the regular routine of the Southern Pacific medical department and carry on their private practices in addition to all the responsible and daily owing treatments of cancer cases.

Like medieval alchemists who worked in lonely towers under the midnight stars, the Humbers continue their antioncical and chemical operations in the late hours of the night, some times until dawn.

MAY HAVE FOUND HORMONE

The Coffey-Humber technic calls for not only a thorough understanding of the anatomy and physiology of the sympathetic nerves and the ductless glands and so on, but also an unusual mechanical ability. The preparation of the extract from the cortical region of the suprarenal glands is a feat of biochemical skill of the first rank.

Interested surgeons have repeatedly asked Drs. Coffey and Humber:

"What is the nature of your extract?"

"We believe," Coffey and Humber invariably reply, "That we have obtained the active principle, the hormone, of the cortex of the suprarenal."

Science already knows and uses adrenalin, the extract from the medulla of the suprarenal or adrenal gland.

THIS IS EXTRACT

Drs. Coffey and Humber are apparently the first in the field to obtain a potent extract from cortex as distinguished from the medulla, of the adrenal or suprarenal glands, they pointed out.

"We now insist on calling our preparation an extract," said Coffey and Humber.

"In certain moments, it has been referred to as a serum, but medical usage confines the term serum for quite a different species of fluid extracts. In the strict sense ours is neither an emulsion of the gland nor a serum. What we have succeeded in obtaining is a clear fluid, an extract."

"Unless you have complete mastery in anatomical and biochemical operations, you cannot expect to succeed in this kind of work," Dr. Coffey pointed out. "In surgical science as in other sciences it is the intensification of accuracy that leads to new discoveries.

SOUGHT A NEW REMEDY

"If we had not been able to locate, isolate and operate upon the subtle branches of the nerve-paths of the sympathetic nerves we could not have established our operative treatment for angina or heart disease. And without that success, our present cancer work would be impossible.

"Angina, or heart disease, can continue in a patient until all the collateral nerves of the sympathetic system as a ganglion are severed completely," explained Dr. Coffey. "It is because such a thorough-going surgery is not frequently done that the angina operation is considered dubious by many surgeons.

"I mention all this because it shows that our present experimentation was forced upon us by the desire to find a non-surgical substitute for systemic diseases—diseases of the tissue development as well as of blood circulatory system."

Sees Eventual End of Prohibition

New York, Feb. 12—Prohibition will split in two the major political parties and will eventually be defeated either by repeal or revolution, was the statement today of James W. Gerard, treasurer of the National Democratic Committee and former United States ambassador to Germany.

Mr. Gerard, who sailed today for a six weeks' stay in Cuba, also declared that the best way to defeat prohibition was to try to enforce it.

Attacking Pastor Costs Man $100 Fine

Lowell, Feb. 12 (AP)—Fotios Moumusis of this city was fined $100 today for assault and battery on Rev. Joakim Malahias, pastor of the Holy Trinity Greek Orthodox Church.

TEN KILLED IN SOVIET SLAPS FRENCH MUTINY MEXICO

Hanoi, French Indo-China, Feb. 12 (AP)—Five French officers were killed and five wounded and five Annamite troopers were killed and six wounded in a mutiny of native riflemen at Yenbay, on Red river, 90 miles from here. Riflemen aided by a number of civilian residents, tried to rush the camp. Severe fighting occurred when the French loyal garrison attempted to repulse them.

The attack was made by 200 Tonkin riflemen accompanied by 60 native revolutionaries, all allegedly inspired by foreign revolutionary agitation. Airplanes are now trying to locate the mutineers, who have taken refuge in a forest between Yenbay and Phutho.

Moscow, U. S. S. R., Feb. 12 (AP)—Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet vice-commissioner for foreign affairs, has dispatched a sharp note of protest to the Mexican government for the treatment given the Russian minister, Alexander Makar, by Mexican police.

Litvinoff declared that the search of the minister's trunks at Vera Cruz and the detention for three hours of the minister and his wife were "flagrant violations of the rules of international conduct".

Reproving the Mexican police he insisted that the Russian minister was entitled to all extraterritorial rights and diplomatic immunity until the moment he left Mexican soil.

DRINKERS TO BE ARRESTED IN N. Y. DRIVE

Prohibition Chief Warns Hotel Patrons Not to Have Liquor on Tables

New York, Feb. 12 (AP)—Patrons who take their own liquor into hotels, restaurants and night clubs are threatened with arrest by Maj. Maurice Campbell, prohibition administrator.

Coupled with his announcement of a new policy of enforcement action against individuals, Maj. Campbell issued a warning to proprietors and managers that they must not serve mineral waters, ginger ale, mineral water and ice to patrons of public dining rooms who bring liquor.

The warnings were issued simultaneously with the raiding of Cornish Arms Hotel and Cavanaugh's, one of the city's old world known restaurants. Both are situated in W. 23rd st. in the old Chelsea district.

"The public is warned," Maj. Campbell said, "that the possession of liquor in public places may result in the arrest of such citizens who thus openly violate the law, and under no circumstances will my agents wink at hip-flasks or drinks of individuals who publicly display liquor on the tables in restaurants and night clubs.

"Heretofore the individuals have not been arrested, but from now on they must be prepared to accept consequences of their law violations."

The Cornish Arms Hotel was raided by nine federal agents who arrested bellboys, waiters and persons accused as bootleggers. Nine persons, including the hotel barber were taken.

At Cavanaugh's restaurant, Hugh Small, president of the operating company, Maurice Moynahan, secretary-treasurer, and nine others including waiters, were arrested.

Maj. Campbell said three commerce been living at the Cornish Arms since January 1 and had brought liquor there and at Cavanaugh's.

A conference between Maj. Campbell and Charles H. Tuttle, United States attorney, will be held to determine whether in proceedings against the Hotel Macfadden, which was raided on Monday, they would seek a padlock order for the entire hotel or only for the bar, grill room and a dozen guest rooms where they charge liquor was sold to federal agents.

U. S. Indicts 25 in Pack Mule Rum Smuggling

Spokane, Wash., Feb. 12 (AP)—Twenty-five persons were under indictment today in what the government alleges was a huge conspiracy to transport liquor from Canada to northwest cities by mule pack trains.

The conspiracy, the government charged, resulted in thousands of dollars worth of liquor being smuggled into the United States.

Three men rings, accused of using pack mules to smuggle in the liquor, were said to have resorted to camouflage to hide the long lines of plodding, liquor-laden animals and at times to have driven the mules over United States forestry service trails.

So well-organized were the widespread operations of the three rum rings that a "traffic manager" was employed to route the mule pack trains from Canada to secluded places opposite the sparsely settled and mountainous Okanogan country in north central Washington.

Government agents said the Pacific manager also watched the weather and when it snowed sent white mules along the trails, the animals blending with the whiteness of the landscape. When the ground was bare buy mules carried the liquor.

Heavily armed guards accompanied the liquor trains to prevent hijackers' attacks.

10 Arrested in Paris Anti-Red Rioting

DUNNE WARNS R. I. SOLONS

Providence, Feb. 12—Mayor James E. Dunne of Providence declared today that unless the members of the State Legislature maintain a "hands off" policy, the city will face a financial crisis similar to the one now existing in Chicago.

The possibility of such a crisis was expressed by the mayor as the result of the introduction of two bills which have a direct bearing upon the city.

The first bill was one that would make the tenure of office for members of the board of canvassers six years instead of three years and the salary $1000 instead of $3500.

Mayor Dunn declared that this bill was introduced without the knowledge or request of any member of the city government.

The second bill would make the position of harbor master and city treasurer elective by members of the City Council instead of by the people.

The Mayor said Providence should be permitted to govern itself and that no bill that will tend to affect the financial condition of the city should be passed unless it is desired by the citizens.

Bust of Lincoln Is Unveiled in London

London, Feb. 12 (AP)—A bust of Abraham Lincoln, the work of Andrew O'Connor, an American sculptor, who presented it to the city of London as a token of Anglo-American friendship was unveiled at the Royal Exchange today by the Lord Mayor, Sir William Waterlow. It was formally presented to the city by the Marquis of Crewe who acted for the Marquis of Reading, chairman of the Lincoln committee.

The bust is carved from a block of American lime stone quarried near Bedford, Indiana, and portrays the President in middle age before the Civil War.

Smoot Eulogizes Lincoln in Senate

Washington, D. C., Feb. 12 (AP)—The birthday anniversary of Abraham Lincoln was observed in the Senate today when a eulogy was paid to him by Senator Smoot, Republican, Utah, eulogizing the Civil War President.

"Lincoln was a man whose memory time he stated, was the pride of the Utah senator. "Lincoln loved the whole people, not a part of it; he loved the whole people, not a part of them. In this same spirit let us join to solve our problems."

Senator Dill, Democrat, Washington, followed with a query as to what chance Lincoln would have today to be named chief justice of the United States, for he was a radical of his day."

WEST ROXBURY CLUB COMPLETES 19 YEARS OF SERVICE IN DISTRICT

THAT the West Roxbury Woman's Club had sustained its motto of "Service" during the 19 years it has lived, was read into the records at the club's birthday party by the president, Mrs. William O. B. Little.

Two and half times as much has been expended during those years for philanthropies and charities as has gone into the program budget, Mrs. Little told close to 1000 members and guests who crowded the Bellevue Community Theater.

The club gave $3150 for scholarships; $3500 for philanthropies; $8000 for the free bed fund at the Faulkner Hospital, and $6000 during the year. For the programs of 19 years $10,000 was disbursed to lecturers, musicians, artists and for entertainments.

The afternoon was featured by a three-act farce, "Tons of Money," in which the roles were all portrayed by club members. Mrs. James F. Hamburger had charge of the program and, incidentally, was awarded the play contest prize announced at the theater for the first time.

The contest started last October. Four plays were submitted without identification. The envelope containing the name of the author was opened by Professor W. E. A. Dubois, state vice-chairman of the department of literature, a guest of the club. Mrs. Hamburger's theatrical gesture will be produced by the club later in the season.

Mrs. George L. Fickett, Mrs. Arthur R. Humphries, Mrs. Albert E. Barss, Mrs. Harold A. Martin, Mrs. Edmund S. Phinney, Mrs. David E. Bigwood, Mrs. Samuel F. Wise, Mrs. George A. Wilson, Mrs. William F. Damon and Mrs. Byron P. Morton took part in the farce. Four of the cast are members of the dramatic committee.

Greetings were extended to the women by the founder and first president of the West Roxbury club, Mrs. Walter G. Newell. Mrs. Little asked the club members to pursue her three wishes: that the club should have its work to do; that the women should keep the club to work for, and that everyone attending the birthday party of the club go home happy and contented.

WOMEN'S DEMOCRATIC CLUB

That the Massachusetts Democrats, men and women, are intent upon having a powerful machine and organization to support and carry on the gubernatorial and senatorial election next November is evinced by the coherent workings of the various women's clubs and groups devoted to this purpose.

The Democratic women will sponsor a bridge and whist at the Ritz Hotel, Thursday evening, February 20, the proceeds to be contributed to the State Democratic committee fund.

Among those invited are Mayor Curley, former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, Senator David I. Walsh, Frank J. Donohue, Democratic State committee chairman; Mrs. Colin McDonald, Mayor Richard Russell of Cambridge, Mayor John J. Murphy of Somerville, Mayor Patrick J. Duane of Waltham, Mrs. Jessie Wilson Sayre, Mrs. Richard Russell, Miss Louise Kelley, Dean Archer of Suffolk Law school, Peter Tague, Marcus Coolidge, Gen. Edward L. Logan, Martin Lomasney, members of the City Council and members of the Legislature.

The women working for the success of the affair are headed by Mrs. D. A. Lynch, chairman; Miss Mary T. Keohane, secretary; Mrs. Mary Goodwin Murphy, treasurer; Mrs. Mabelle A. Kelley, Mrs. Mae Miller, Mrs. Ada Alpert, Miss Jane Coughlin, Miss May Healy, Miss Lena Mogilner, Mrs. D. A. Lynch, Miss Ida Fardell, Mrs. Adelaide English, Mrs. Mabel Muir, Mrs. Josephine Sexton, Mrs. Agnes Fay, Mrs. Gertrude Scott, Mrs. Elizabeth Patterson, Miss Elizabeth Flavin, Mrs. Mary J. Renney, Miss Shiela O'Donovan Rossa and Miss Lucy Brennan.

SALEM WOMAN'S CLUB

Miss Phoebe Hosmer, chairman of the department of literature for the State Federation of Women's Clubs, will talk on "Some Poets and Poetry of Today" at the meeting Wednesday, February 19, at 2 p. m. in Academy Hall. Miss Caroline Porter will give a book review. The club chorus will sing patriotic music. Mrs. Ralph W. Porter, chairman of art and literature committee, is in charge of the program.

SOUTH END WOMEN'S CLUB

"How the Commonwealth Looks at Americanization" will be explained by Miss Agnes O'Connor, secretary of the Massachusetts division of immigration, at the Americanization Night meeting of the club next Monday in the Assembly Room at 20 Union Park at 8 o'clock. Miss Lillie M. Peck, club chairman of the committee, has charge and will introduce the speaker.

A musical program to illustrate the contribution of Old World peoples to the New will be presented by Miss Ruth Reed of South End House.

BUSINESS AND PROFESSIONAL WOMEN'S CLUBS

Seeks Lost Tribe

Miss Bessie Steen, young school teacher of San Jose, Cal., is en route to the jungles of Brazil on anthropological expedition to find lost tribe of primitive natives. (Associated Press photo.)

Mrs. Alice Foote McDougall, New York business woman and successful restaurateur, left with club members in an inspiring lecture on "Work."

Necessity drove her to work, she said. And when it did she had to play the game as men play it.

"The cost of work is something neither men nor women like to consider," she told them. "They don't like to consider the high price success exacts from every individual who achieves it. Part of it is a price in nerves and irritability that I think women should not pay unless they have to, because they have a far more difficult and far higher mission to perform, that of being the spiritual motive power of the world.

"Women are this whether they have temporarily sought to abandon it or not, and in the long run they cannot exchange their inheritance for a mess of pottage.

"Americans should try to change their conception of work. We have so highly commercialized it that we think of it, most of us, only in terms of money. But work is a much greater thing than that. It can bring happiness to unhappy people when they express through their work the beauty of their souls, and the Italian pottery worker does today and the old silversmith and master craftsmen used to do. We have lost this blessing in work here but we can regain it."

"SHUT-UP BREAD"

This is worthy of repetition.

At a charity bridge, Mrs. Clara Mabel Ross of Dorchester commenting on the wisdom of youngsters told of the little boy who called loudly to his mother on the third floor of an apartment house for "bread and jam, shut-up." Mrs. Ross gestured her amazement at the language of the youngster to his mother, and in commenting on same to her was told that such a sentence from the child meant "bread and jam sandwich."

Get the point? Two pieces of bread closed, between which should be much jam.

LADIES' UNITY CLUB

The annual luncheon and bridge to take place at the Hotel Westminster, Tuesday, February 25, at which will be chairmanned by Mrs. Ethel Rogers Rimbach. The Ways and Means Committee is completing plans for the gathering at the home of Mrs. John E. Tull of 19 Hamilton rd., Brookline. In the interim, Mrs. William D. King, chairman of the President's Tea, is busying herself with the details of the tea to be held in the clubroom.

Mrs. Nellie M. Bickford, hostess of the Monday whists, urges members and friends to attend her parties that many dollars might be added to the coal fund.

PINNEY EARLE ASSAILED AS 'MONSTER'

Los Angeles, Feb. 12 (AP)—Dolores Salazar's suit against Ferdinand Pinney "Affinity" Earle, artist, for $80,000 damages for alleged breach of a pre-nuptial contract, will go to the jury tomorrow.

Counsel for both sides presented their closing arguments to the jury after which court adjourned until Thursday due to today's legal holiday.

Roger Marchetti, attorney for Miss Salazar, in his closing argument, branded Earle as "a monster love-maker—an artist in the art of making love as well as of painting —who used all his wiles to betray this little inexperienced girl from another country, and blast her happiness."

"Any man who likens a woman to a ripe peach which he said fell into his lap is a supreme egotist," Marchetti said. "He has deceived other girls. Wasn't he married four, or was it five, times?"

William S. Ogden, Earle's attorney, declared the Spanish dancer had withdrawn from any contract she had with Earle when of her own accord she left the hotel where they were staying in Paris, France. Miss Salazar had testified Earle ejected her from the Paris hotel and turned her out penniless into a strange country.

Loss of Brooch Worries Astrid

Brussels, Feb. 12—Crown Princess Astrid of Belgium has been worried by the loss of a brooch set with nine large emeralds and 80 diamonds at the court ball recently.

The estimated value of the brooch is half a million francs. The brooch has not been recovered and the incident has caused excitement in high society.

Noted Perfume Man Dead

Sarasota, Fla., Feb. 12 (AP)—Albert C. Wright, 73, one of America's foremost perfume manufacturers and for years a manufacturer of perfumes at Rochester, N. Y., died today from a heart attack, which followed an illness of several months.

Autograph Verses of Lincoln Revealed

By LOUIS J. HUMPHREY
Copyright, 1930, International News Service

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 12—"Oh, Mr. Lincoln, wont you please write something in our autograph books?"

And at this request of two little backwoods misses still in their teens, Abraham Lincoln paused in his preparations for debates with Stephen A. Douglas, to try his hand at poetry.

The result, three short verses penned in 1858 for the two girls, Ross and Linnie Haggard, are presented to the world today for the first time by International News Service through courtesy of Edward G. Miner, of Rochester, N. Y.

The verses will appear soon in a new volume of Lincoln to be published late in March, compiled by Paul M. Angle, secretary of the Abraham Lincoln Association of Springfield. This volume will say:

"On the afternoon of Sept. 28, 1858, Lincoln spoke at a large barbecue held at Winchester, county seat of Scott county.

"During his stay in Winchester, Lincoln stopped at the town hotel, the Haggard House. In the proprietor's family were two daughters. At their request Lincoln wrote the following verses in their autograph books:

TO ROSA

You are young and I am older,
You are hopeful, I am not—
Many life here it grows colder—
Pluck the roses ere they rot.

Back your beau to heed the lay
That 'sunshine soon is lost in shade,'
But 'now's as good as any day'—
To take thee, Rosa, 'ere you fade.

A. LINCOLN.

TO LINNIE

Sweet, plaintive song did I hear,
And I fancied that she was the singer;
By emotions as pure as that song well entire
Be the worst that the future shall bring her.

A. LINCOLN.

RED AIR FORCE OF 17,000,000

Moscow, Feb. 12 (AP)—Under a special five-year plan adopted today by the Soviet Volunteer Society for Aerial and Chemical Defense, which is a powerful civilian arm of the regular red army, navy and aviation forces, Soviet Russia will have 17,000,000 persons engaged in various branches of air and gas defense by 1934. There are now 2,000,000 so engaged.

In unfolding this plan Alexander Malinovsky, undersecretary for the society, said the authorities will increase the number of aviation schools from four to 25, which will train thousands of pilots. The number of aviation groups will be increased from 300 to 2500.

Volunteer detachments numbering 31,000 and embracing 8,000,000 members, will be engaged in the protection of cities from gas attacks. About 4,500,000 persons will receive military preparation.

PLAN PROTEST IN 'FOOD OR WORK' RIOTS

Cleveland, Feb. 12 (AP)—A mass "protest" meeting was called for late today by leaders of the 1200 unemployed men and women who pitted fists and knives against police night sticks in a "work or food" riot before the City Hall yesterday.

Women and children were urged to join a public rally against "police brutality" by orators who retreated waving strips of policemen's coat tails as banners after the unemployed had been beaten away from the City Hall.

Nine alleged rioters were under arrest today, two more of the unemployed and three policemen were suffering from injuries and more than a score of others nursed bruises from kicks and blows.

Culminating a three months' offensive against the City Council since unemployment became acute the so-called council of the unemployed recruited some 1200 persons and marched on the City Hall to demand work or food. A committee was scheduled to hear their representatives about unemployment.

A wild melee followed when police refused to admit the entire gathering and attempted to clear crosswalks. Three officers went down and a furious scramble raged for half an hour, with police swinging night sticks. The rioters lost heart when two fire trucks arrived and made ready to throw a water barrage.

Although organizations claiming communistic affiliations have frequently stormed council meetings, officials said they believed no Communist group was directly responsible for the outbreak.

Pawnbroker Held for Mulcting Veterans

Chicago, Feb. 12—Henry W. Ebann, pawnbroker, was arrested here today by federal operators, charged with accepting more than 200 war veterans' adjustment compensations as security for loans as high as $300 for which he is said to have charged interest at the rate of 3½ per cent per month for the full amount of the compensation.

The technical charge is violation of the law safeguarding war insurance.

We looked at ourselves

• through our Customers' Eyes

LAST year The Boston Edison Company decided to find out what its customers thought of their electric service—how they felt the service could be improved—in what activities of the Company its customers were particularly interested.

To obtain this information, a trained organization entirely independent of the Company, was retained. 7000 Edison Service Customers were interviewed and their replies to a questionnaire tabulated carefully. Owners of small homes . . . large homes . . . apartment dwellers—small and large families—in modest and in pretentious neighborhoods—workers in stores, factories, offices—made up this list.

Residents of Boston proper, its suburbs, and outlying towns which are a part of the territory served by The Edison Company, were all a part of this list of 7000 typical customers—in other words, everything possible was done to obtain a fair representation of the users of Edison Service.

All these questionnaires now have been carefully examined and the answers tabulated. Many interesting facts came to light. We were pleased to discover that while certain individual representatives of the Company were not as efficient as we desired, on the whole our force of 3600 employees was regarded as courteous, helpful, and attentive by our customers . . . Steps were taken immediately to remedy existing situations warranting attention . . . and further changes are being made, at the present time, to make our service even more satisfactory.

Finding that such an extremely large percentage of the 7000 customers interviewed was intensely interested in its activities, the Company feels that in all probability the remainder of its customers would likewise be glad to have additional information. Therefore, in a series of advertisements, we will take up the questions which seemed most interesting to our customers, and answer them as completely as space allows.

We have looked at ourselves through our customers' eyes, and we are going to tell you, fairly and squarely, what we have found.

NEW AIRPLANE FIRM OPENS AT BEVERLY

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

The newest airplane operating company in New England was announced today when Bob Bernson notified us that North Shore Airways would begin operations at Beverly airport on or before March 1.

This is good news to the commercial boys in New England, because the North Shore has been in need of a modern airplane company.

Starting out with an airport like Beverly has Bernson will have the finest layout of any town or city within a short radius of Boston.

To make things more interesting, North Shore Airways has the first woman official of any commercial flying outfit in New England. She is none other than Bob's wife, Mrs. Dolly Bernson, who holds down the title and the job of sales manager. Mrs. Bernson has been flying since last summer and was on the verge of soloing when the cold weather closed for the winter.

Associated with Bernson is Bob Vetmore, son of the first name in Vetmore-Sikorsky, who is president, while "Slim" Halstead, vice-president and chief pilot; and Mrs. Bernson sales manager.

The company is Eastern Massachusetts dealer for the Arrow Sport Biplane and New England distributors of Buhl Airsedans. Two Arrows and one Buhl comprise the operating equipment on hand at present, and Bernson has his eyes on several other ships, including the new Arrow Pursuit, powered with a Kinner 100 horse motor, which will be added to the line as soon as business warrants.

BACKED BY BEVERLY

The Buhl Airsedan, powered with a Wright Whirlwind J-5, 200 horsepower motor, is receiving a complete overhauling, even down to the upholstery in the cabin, and will be ready for service in two weeks. Fred Ames' East Coast Aircraft is overhauling the Whirlwind.

Beverly, from the mayor down, is solidly behind commercial aviation, and the airport also fosters the Beverly Aero Club, which was the first organization on the port flying airplanes last summer.

Bernson also unfolded a new wrinkle in this flying business. Two of the companies at the Boston Airport operate out-of-town flying schools. Curtiss-Wright at Martha's Vineyard during the summer, and Skovrans at Marston Mills the year round, the only one of its kind in the East.

And now we have an out-of-town flying company offering flying courses to all and sundry, and when students are signed up here in Boston, or nearer this town than Beverly, they will be taken to the civil hours for flight instruction, and will be transported from Boston Airport to Beverly Airport in the Buhl cabin job, four at a time. When they arrive at Beverly, they will be sent right up on their instruction flight with no waiting on tap.

OFFICES IN CHELSEA

Present offices of the company are located at 110 Parker st., Chelsea, and when the outfit is opened up, offices will be right on Beverly Airport.

Hazelrod brought himself up from nothing practically, and made himself one of the finest transport pilots in New England. He recently came back from flying William Danforth down to Florida, in Danforth's own Bellanca Pacemaker.

"Slim," and he lives up to his name, standing about six feet two, plugged away after checking out of the army air corps, and spent every dime and dough to get the coveted transport ticket.

Considering the summer trade in the vicinity of Beverly, North Shore Airways, Bob Bernson and the boys would seem to have a rosy future in front of them.

Right on the heels of a tip that a plane had been forced down in Revere, we asked Al Sherman, student instructor of Curtiss-Wright, to fly over there with his pet student and see if a ship had gone haywire.

An arrangement with Sherman, whereby he was to waggle his wings upon returning to the airport if there was a ship down, gave us the desired information, and a few minutes later we had the story.

No need of airplanes with radio for clear weather signaling, what?

$2.98 Boxing Course Makes Trainer, Mad

New York, Feb. 12 (AP)—Jimmy De Forest has a reputation as a trainer of fighters which he feels has been damaged because the cost of a correspondence course in boxing was reduced to $2.98.

He is suing for an injunction and $50,000. The suit from $27.50, he avers, has made him the butt of ridicule.

RUBIO THANKS AMERICANS

New York, Feb. 12 (AP)—President Pascual Ortiz Rubio of Mexico sent the following message to the Associated Press, asking that it express his gratitude to the American public for the interest it manifested in his health after the recent attack made upon his life:

"I am most grateful for the courtesy shown me by the Associated Press in spreading over all the American Union the news transmitted from this capital regarding the attack of which I was recently a victim, and in connection with the condition of my health.

"The interest which this news has awakened among the people of your country call for my sincere gratitude and I wish to make this feeling expressed through the Associated Press, which I also wish to have express my sincere gratitude and very affectionate regards to the American people."

BLAZE ON LINER EXTINGUISHED

New York, Feb. 12 (AP)—After a battle of nearly 24 hours, firemen today finally extinguished the fire which wrecked the North German Lloyd liner Muenchen as she lay at her pier in the Hudson river, causing damage estimated at more than $3,000,000 and taking a toll of two lives.

The blaze had been under control for hours, but the flames continued to lick about the Muenchen's superstructure even after her stern sank into the mud.

Firemen, pouring tons of water into the burning hull, prevented the flames from reaching the forward holds and cargoes of highly inflammable materials which might have endangered the lives of firemen, wrecked the pier and spread to the waterfront.

Capt. Theodore Drechsel, the liner's marine superintendent, after a brief examination, said he believed the liner's hull contained intact despite a series of explosions which wrecked the liner's interior.

Daugherty's Son Dies in Florida

Sarasota, Fla., Feb. 12 (AP)—Draper Daugherty, 41, son of Harry M. Daugherty, attorney-general in the Harding administration, is dead here from complications after an appendicitis operation.

The body will be sent to New Canaan, Conn., his former home, for burial. Harry M. Daugherty, his father, is ill at West Palm Beach.

Draper Daugherty was wounded during the Meuse-Argonne campaign.

J. J. McGrane, Papal Knight, Dies at 80

New York, Feb. 12 (AP)—John J. McGrane, 80, a papal knight of St. Gregory, is dead at his home in West 83rd st.

He was decorated by Popes Leo XIII, Pius X and Benedict XV, and acted as adviser on American Catholic affairs to three successive papal secretaries of state, Cardinals Merry Del Val, Bisleti and Gasparri.

IRENE CASTLE IS TO BUILD NEW DOG REFUGE

Lake Forest, Ill., Feb. 12 (AP)—The 83 dogs burned to death when fire destroyed Mrs. Irene Castle McLaughlin's dog refuge, "Orphans of the Storm," did not die in vain.

Mrs. McLaughlin announced today that a new and even better refuge for homeless dogs would replace the $10,000 kennels that burned.

She also declared that she would demand a thorough investigation and prosecution if it were found the fire was of incendiary origin, as she believes.

The theory of incendiarism was borne out, she said, not only by the nature of the fire itself, starting as it did in the early morning hours, but by the fact that telephone wires leading from the keeper's dwelling were cut, preventing the summoning of firemen.

There have been several complaints to the Lake County prosecutor recently against the refuge which the complaints describe as a nuisance.

Mrs. McLaughlin's crusade against cruelty to animals has been an active one for years. Once she challenged the Chicago health commissioner's order for all dogs to be inoculated against rabies. She publicly objected to horse show harness that forced the horses to hold their heads erect.

Rabies, she advised Dr. Arnold H. Kegel, the health commissioner, was a rare malady and what were called "mad" dogs more likely were sick dogs.

Mrs. McLaughlin remarked she has no intention of returning to the stage. She prefers her home and said she had "slowed up." She may be more matronly, but not less comely than when her dancing, her walking, her dress, her hair, even her manicures were copied by women around the world.

IRENE CASTLE IS OFFER TO FIGHT BY GEN. M'COY TO PROFESSOR

Macon, Ga., Feb. 12 (AP)—Addressing the Georgia conference on the cause and cure of war, Maj. Gen. Frank R. McCoy, Fourth Corps area commander, offered to fight a college professor because of the "none" of questions which the educator propounded to him regarding the foreign policy of the United States.

After the meeting, however, the general was introduced to his questioner, Prof. John D. Allen, instructor in journalism at Mercer University, and a conversation brought the incident to an amicable end.

The general delivered an address on "Peace Practical Peace Problems," dealing with the occupation of Cuba, the Nicaraguan intervention and the committee of inquiry and conciliation which adjusted the Bolivian-Paraguayan dispute.

Mrs. Lucia Ames Mead, of Boston and Miss Jeannette Rankin, former member of Congress, asked several questions. Then Prof. Allen asked:

"Does the Monroe Doctrine or the Constitution give the President the right to land marines when he wishes to do so?"

As commander-in-chief of the army and navy the President has the authority to land marines in any country," the general replied.

"Could the President use example, land troops in Great Britain?" asked the professor.

"Yes, but he wouldn't," said the general.

"Does the United States wish to civilize the Latin American countries or does it wish to protect the Panama canal; and if the first is true, does it intend to civilize them by occupying them with soldiers?" asked the professor.

"To answer your question I should have to make generalizations I do not care to make," the general said. "I don't like the tone of your questions, nor their insinuations, and I take it that you are insulting the government I represent and the uniform I wear."

"It happens that I wore the same uniform," said Allen, "and I do not mean it as an insult."

"I consider it such," said the general. "There are ladies here, but I would be glad to argue with you or have a discussion with you, or have a fight with you."

Fourth Inmate Dies in Brockton Fire

Brockton, Feb. 12—The toll of lives in the City Home fire mounted to four when Miss Selena Sexton, 68-year-old inmate, died at Brockton Hospital from inhalation of smoke and shock.

Little hope is held for the recovery of Fred Stone, 60, another inmate, whose name is on the danger list at the hospital.

Antique a Day
No. 21

Here is a bit of early English semi-china in the form of a small tea-pot which has been in one family for six generations. During the past century or so, the vessel has served chiefly as a feeding cup for growing infants or for invalids. Its present owner, Mrs. Bessie Constantine of 80 Eutaw st., East Boston, believes that it has never in its history brewed a pot of tea.

An expert will have something to say regarding this class of china in tomorrow's American.

The banjo clock shown yesterday is typical of those produced first by the famous clock-maker, Simon Willard, chief of a great family of New England clock makers. His first clocks were produced at Grafton in 1760. He moved to Roxbury in 1818. His earliest clocks were tall.

He began experimenting with mantel and bracket clocks and produced an interesting type which ran 30 days. Commencing in 1802, he perfected the 8-day movement, and his banjo clocks were produced from about 1800 onward. His brothers, Benjamin, Ephraim, Aaron and his son, Simon, also made great reputations in the same line.

In connection with the Massachusetts Tercentenary Year, the Boston Evening American will publish from day to day interesting specimens of authentic antiques. Readers possessing genuine antiques, particularly articles of Colonial or early American origin or historic association, are invited to forward photographs and records for publication. In case no photograph is available, the American will send one of its staff cameramen to photograph your antique if you live in Greater Boston. Material should be addressed to "Antique Editor, 3 Winthrop sq., Boston."

TWO INJURED FIGHTING FIRES

downstairs where they met Patrolman William Lyons of the Back Bay station. The policeman ran to a box and sounded the alarm after which he returned to the building and aroused occupants.

In a third floor apartment, John F. Beatty, awakened by smoke, aroused his wife, and when he went to lift his four-year-old daughter, Eleanor, found her unconscious. Carrying the child in his arms and leading his wife, Beatty made his way to the street where he collapsed.

From the second floor Miss Anne E. Gauvin and Miss Ona C. Fleming were led to safety in their nightclothing. They were affected by smoke.

"Betty," poligreed bulldog, the pet of Patterson, was also overcome but was rescued by her master who returned into the smoke-filled building to save her. The loss to the building was placed at $500.

Hoseman O'Brien, who was permitted to go home after treatment at the hospital, was knocked from a ladder while fighting a two-alarm blaze which did $10,000 damage to the 3½ story brick building at 220 Friend st., North End.

The fire started on the second floor of the building, smothered through the walls and worked out through the roof. The first floor was occupied by John Taber, locksmith and hardware supplies. The remainder of the building was occupied by Mass. Gas & Electrical Fixtures Co.

Mrs. Ellen Allen, 60, proprietor of a lodging house at 28 Common st., South End, was carried to safety when a fire, starting from a stove pipe she was repairing, broke out on the first floor.

Roxbury Young Lady Had Mother Worried

Mrs. L. M. Enck of 1641 Columbus Ave., Roxbury, Mass., says of her 15-year-old daughter, Elaine, who is a student at the Notre Dame Academy: "My daughter has not been feeling real well for the past few years. She was always troubled with constipation, which of course leads to so many other things. Her complexion was very poor —she was pale and sallow and at times her face would break out with pimples. She always was more or less tired and frequently had headaches. She seemed to be in a general rundown condition and we were quite worried about her. We read and heard so much about this Bon-Tone that finally we decided to see what it would do for Elaine. Well, she has taken five bottles so far and is just feeling great. She seemed to pick up right away and now she is full of life and pep, and never complains of feeling tired. Her color is good and her face doesn't break out any more. She never has a headache and constipation has been banished. Really, Bon-Tone has made a different girl of Elaine and I am very pleased to have this opportunity to let others know of the great merit of this remedy."

Bon-Tone Is Not a Make-Shift Remedy

The herbs used in Bon-Tone have incomparable first instance a nerve tonic of therapeutic value in the treatment and a constraining medicine combination of ailments arising from disordered stomach, liver, kidney and bowels, and every herb assists the other. Many remedies of today are make-shifts. Herbs picked at random and combines to form a tonic and alterative of compounded in such a way as to be the highest type.

Valued Employee of Boston Highway Dept. Endorses Bon-Tone

Mr. Marinus Walraven, 7 Walden St., Roxbury, Mass., states: "Ever since I came back from the war I have had a great deal of trouble with my health in general. I always had a sour, acid stomach and no matter how careful I was of my diet was bothered greatly with gas which was sure to form. I had a lot of headaches and sometimes they were very severe. My kidneys were not right and I would have terrible pains across my back and nights my rest would be disturbed several times, and mornings when I got up I felt as tired as when I went to bed, and sometimes more so. These pains across my back were often so severe that I couldn't stoop over without being in agony. The first two bottles of Bon-Tone helped me so much that I kept right on taking it, and now, after 10 bottles, I feel just fine—best I have felt in ten years. I eat well and have no distress afterward—I sleep just fine now the whole night thru and wake up in the morning feeling rested and fit for the day's work. The kidney condition has cleared up and I have no more pains across my back. Altogether I feel great in every way and Bon-Tone gets all the credit."

Druggists Everywhere Enthusiastic Over Success of Bon-Tone—5 Carloads Sold Every Month in New England

J. WALSH & CUMMINGS, Manchester, N. H., say: "Have sold Proprietary Medicines for 25 years. BON-TONE has proved the biggest seller of them all."

J. H. DeORSAY, Waterville, Me., says: "Were it not for the high quality of BON-TONE, the high sales total that we have could not have been attained. BON-TONE is a sure repeater and users remark on the great results attained."

R. C. MARSH, Mellen Drug Store, Fall River, Mass., says: "During the past year we found that BON-TONE was the biggest seller on our shelves. Let me congratulate you on this wonderful remedy."

EPSTEIN'S DRUG STORE, Scollay Sq., Boston, says: "We have sold thousands and thousands of bottles of BON-TONE . . . and it is pleasing to us to know that so many of our patrons are getting such wonderful results. May the time of this remarkable medicine spread all over the world."

FORREST DRUG STORE, Lawrence, Mass., says: "I have never handled a medicine that sells so fast as BON-TONE. Just recently we sold as high as 432 bottles in one day. Truly a remarkable record. The way our customers speak about BON-TONE proves to us its merits."

GULBIN'S DRUG STORE, Worcester, Mass., says: "The sale of BON-TONE certainly has amazed us, but the best part is the way many of our customers commend us for having such a splendid remedy on sale. Right from the start BON-TONE made good . . . the whole town was talking BON-TONE."

Dorchester Man Finds Relief in Bon-Tone When Other Remedies Failed

Mr. Daniel Jadres, 41 Parkman St., Dorchester, Mass., foreman carpenter at the Dobin & Lundy Co., Boston, and a member of Local No. 33, Carpenters' Union, Boston, says: "Bon-Tone has improved my health 100% and I am glad to give this testimonial recommending such a splendid remedy. I have been ailing now for about a year and tried many different remedies in search of relief but to no avail until I took Bon-Tone. No matter what I ate I always suffered afterward—either with severe pains in my stomach and a bloated feeling or else I would belch a lot of gas . . . I also was troubled often with dizzy spells. Sometimes I would sleep poorly and wake up mornings feeling as tired as when I went to bed. The first two bottles of Bon-Tone gave me fine results so I kept right on taking it, and now I feel fine. My stomach is in first class condition and no more gas or pains—my food digests as it should. I sleep fine and wake up mornings feeling refreshed and rested. Dizzy spells are a thing of the past, and altogether all my ailments have been banished—thanks to Bon-Tone."

Big Turnout Expected at Ice Carnival in Arena Tonight; Subscribers Prepare for Eastern Dog Show in Garden

ONE OF THE MOST IMPORTANT SOCIAL AND SPORTING events of the month of February is the skating carnival which takes place tonight at the Arena to what promises to be a capacity audience. The convalescent home of the Children's Hospital, of which Mrs George H. Monks is president, will benefit by the gate receipts. Many of Boston's leading society matrons are patronesses. Also an attractive bevy of Junior League girls is to usher. The program will include many internationally known skaters. The star of the evening will probably be Sonja Henie, holder of the women's international figure skating title. Others whose able skating will delight the onlookers are Beatrice Loughran, Karl Schafer, Maribel Y. Vinson, Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Brunet, Mr. Nathaniel W. Niles, Mrs. Theresa W. Blanchard, Roger F. Turner, Miss Melittle Brunnet, Ludwig Wrede, George H. Browne and many other prominent skaters.

SUBSCRIBERS OF THE EASTERN DOG SHOW, WHICH WILL take place at the Boston Garden on February 20, 21 and 22, have already taken 48 boxes for the three-day show and the rest of the tickets will be on sale at the Boston Garden Club and at Herricks and they may also be gotten from Clement M. Bixby, home, chairman of the research show committee. Some of the boxes are reserved for out of town visitors, as this show is second only to the Westminster, which commences in New York on Monday and terminates Tuesday. T. Dickson Smith is president of the club. Dudley P. Rogers is secretary and Newell Bent is treasurer. Of those belonging to the club who will be in boxes are George Saltonstall, Wyeth, Bayard Tuckerman, Nathaniel F. Emmons, A. Shaw McKean, Bayard Warren, L. Loring Brooks and William Proctor of Wellesley. On Washington's Birthday, which is the third and last day, an interesting feature, and one which has never before been presented at an Eastern Dog Show, will be a prize competition between sheep dogs in herding, dividing and penning sheep. Six dogs have been entered. This has been made possible through the courtesy of Quincy Show of Beverly, who will furnish 40 sheep and several dogs from well known New England farms, including his own, Old Hill Farm.

AMONG THOSE ANNUAL AFFAIRS keenly anticipated some time in advance are The Country Club races. A part of the club's magnificent grounds are given over to members and their guests, while the less expensive enclosure invites almost anyone. This important meet this year is to be held on June 14 and 17. The last of these days, besides being a holiday, is also the day set for Harvard's Class Day. It would seem, therefore, that the young set will be doing quite some dashing about that day this year.

HAPPILY WASHINGTON'S Birthday is to fall on a Saturday, thus giving an opportunity for weekending in the country. Some 12 young people are planning to spend this vacation in Francistown, N. H. in the cosy! will be Mr. and Mrs. Charles Terry Collens (Eleanor Perkins), the latter's brother, Floyd Perkins, and Miss Virginia Hayden.

THE CAROLINAS WOULD seem to be alluring at present, judging from the numbers who have recently gone there. Miss Constance Percival, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Percival of Commonwealth ave., is visiting Miss Helen Stone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Stone in Camden, S. C. and Mr. and Mrs. Rodman Paul Snelling and Miss Ella T. Snelling are in Aiken, S. C., where they will be until the first of the month.

THE MOST IMPORTANT event of the current week is the second in the series of Junior Supper dances which as usual will be held in the large ballroom of the Copley-Plaza. Many dinners have been planned to precede this affair. Among those entertaining in this manner is Miss Rosamond Musgrave, daughter of Mrs. E. Porter Musgrave, Mrs. Musgrave and her children make their home with the Misses Hortense I. and Rosamond Porter of Marlborough st.

MRS. ROGER PUGH OF Concord ave., Cambridge is entertaining at bridge and tea on Monday, February 17. Mrs. Pugh before her marriage, a few years ago, was Miss Rosamond Tucker of Brookline.

MISS ROSAMOND CUTLER, post-debutante daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William Cutler of Bay State rd., has sent out cards to a bridge party at her home on Saturday at 2:30 o'clock.

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT BONNER BOWLER, contrary to their original plans to live in South Carolina, have taken a house in Westwood, as Mr. Bowler has entered business in Boston. They invited a number of friends to a "house warming."

WILKINS' RADIO ALLAYS FEARS

San Francisco, Feb. 12—Encouraged by a brief message indicating that Capt. Sir Hubert Wilkins and his three aides are safe aboard the steamer William Scoresby, the Deception Island base of the explorer's Antarctic expedition has intensified efforts to communicate directly with the "lost" party.

The first reassuring break in two weeks of silence came Monday when the steamer Melville, base ship of the expedition, picked up the meager radio report: "Scoresby heard from." It came from one of the sealing vessels that plied into the South Antarctic several days ago when the protracted silence of the Scoresby caused alarm.

Why Wilkins and his companions failed to communicate with Deception Island — whether the Scoresby's radio apparatus had been disabled or whether climatic conditions prevented transmission — had not been determined.

Greetings to Edison Sent Him Over His Old Telegraph Key

Detroit, Feb. 12 (INS)—Thomas A. Edison today has in his possession a telegram of congratulations on his 83rd birthday which was sent to Fort Meyers, Fla., over the same instrument which he operated 50 years ago when he was a telegrapher.

The telegram was sent by guests at a luncheon of the Edison Institute of Technology, at Henry Ford's Museum of Early American History at Dearborn.

The birthday greetings were written out on a blank similar to the ones used 50 years ago. They were copied out, at Ft. Myers, on a similar blank and then delivered to Edison.

SPURN CHARGES BY EX-KAISER

Berlin, Feb. 12—Former Kaiser Wilhelm, once one of the most powerful monarchs of Europe—and as such the center of world interest during 20 years of his reign, no longer commands enough public interest in Germany to warrant public prosecution of his alleged personal offender.

Such was the ruling of Dr. Koehler, attorney-general of Berlin, in rejecting the former Kaiser's application for public prosecution of Ewald Mendel, editor-in-chief of the Berliner Morgenpost, which, a few months ago, charged Wilhelm with having driven personal financial profits from the blood of Germany's best sons killed in the World War at the expense of Germany's national wealth.

The democratic papers had accused the former Kaiser of having made money on Krupp shares allegedly in his possession, and of crippling Germany's national defense by favoring army and navy contracts with that firm.

OLSZEWSKA IN "CARMEN" TRIUMPH

By MOSES SMITH

An opera season without "Carmen" is a contradiction in terms. To a future historian of music, no doubt, one of the inexplicable mysteries will be the persistent popularity of this opera in four acts. In the year 1930 it is probably still the greatest of all operatic favorites while lyric romances of Massenet have almost disappeared from the opera houses and even advanced Puccini has begun to pall.

"Carmen" is loved not only by the public that "knows what it likes," but by the connoisseur as well, even though they may in public turn up their noses at it. The reason for all this—and we hope the future historian will note it carefully—is the melodiousness of the score. It is the most international of operas for the same reason.

Presenting it at the Boston Opera House last night, the Chicago Civic Opera Company was nobly equipped for the melody. We should like to hear a company that can muster not only a few "stars" to do justice to the major roles but also excellent singers for the smaller parts and for the chorus, to which some of the most delicious bits are given. This is only a dream, however. No opera house in the world, certainly no American opera house, can assemble such a cast, because good singers who are also intelligent musicians and in "Carmen" they must be both—are scarce these days.

COOPER IN HUB DEBUT

A few important things made last night's performance stand out. One was the conducting of Emil Cooper, who was making his Boston debut. He presented a freshened version of the score, displaying familiar gems in new or unfamiliar lights. Places were threadbare by oversentimentality were skilfully handled, an that they allowed their own proportion in the whole. Mr. Cooper was more successful, it is true, with the orchestra than with the ensembles on stage, some of which were ragged—notably the quintet.

Secondly, there was the brilliant Maria Olszewska for the title role, one of her most successful creations, as she demonstrated last year. It is said by some that Bizet is not the true Carmen voice, that the part was written for the higher mezzo soprano. The best refutation is the evidence of one's ears. With a heavier, supposedly less manageable voice, Mme. Olszewska sings more freely than nine mezzos out of 10 in this opera. The tones are dark and rich, beautifully colored, though last night they were not quite so fresh as they were a year ago.

SCORES TRIUMPH

As an actress Mme. Olszewska surpasses any Carmen who has been seen here in many years. Beautiful in appearance, quick of gesture and facial change, even able to dance without destroying illusion, she has the intelligence and artistic sincerity to realize Merimee's heroine. Admirable and illusive was her treatment on the stage when she was not supposed to be "doing" anything.

Edith Mason sang beautifully, of course, as Micaela, though with a slight edge to her tones that is usually of the utmost purity. Her development as an artist in recent years has been interesting to watch. Even as the inane character of Micaela, Miss Mason was able to project some illusion.

Rene Maison's Don Jose follows the traditional lines with scarcely a spark of imagination. He is the tenor, and you must have a tenor; when you have said that you have said almost everything. The rest of the cast, with an occasional exception, was content to sing its notes dutifully, without the enlivening spark that turns a show into drama.

This Modern World

Black Now Becomes Striking Decorative Accent in Homes

HOW characteristic it is of modern woman that she should realize that her most sophisticated frock color would prove a subtle accent for the rooms in which she lives! All black or black with an accent has been front page fashion news for months but now the house takes up the cry from a different angle—it becomes color with a black accent!

Just a glass bowl, a bit of ebony colored pottery, a bibelot are the ways in which smart interiors write a new chapter to black—yes the trend is as significant as the first black gloves which daringly graced a wonderful hand!

MODERN decorators have already made a fetish of black in furniture, hangings and wall coverings with some attractive and some distracting effect. Black glass tableware has been introduced by several prominent hostesses but the vogue has been more exclusive than the fad of the majority.

"Now, however, touches of black may be introduced where one would have hesitated formerly to place too black a hand. This dramatic accent in a room of colorful harmonies is black magic—try it and see how charmed you are with the results.

BLACK unrelieved by any color accent may be found in any number of lovely accessories which prove perfect for a room of high colors or soft pastels. There is an impressive elephant in black Barocrat crystal who is willing to become a paper weight, door stop or objet d'art. A modernistic black glass flower holder lets its classically pure outline be silhouetted with striking effect. Book-ends of black pottery offer architectural steps to literature! And a small ink well, also of black pottery, presents its useful self to feminine or masculine desks.

Black with white or black with silver are combinations of classic decorative beauty. Any number of unusual pieces for all parts of the house come under the heading of "black with an accent."

THERE are sets for the bath room which etch a modernistic black and white design on crystal and top the whole with unexpected black wooden stoppers. There is the set of black glass fruit plates which make a unique alliance with decorative ivory orange peelers when used for the fruit course. The desk boasts another black touch in the use of a desk set decorated in black glass.

The boudoir exploits silver and black perfume bottles, a powder box of black glass with opalescent modern figure on its cover, and still another powder container in black French Primavera ware. And lastly, for the cocktail hour comes the refreshment set in black etched glass which consists of a carafe six glasses and a glass tray to match.

Chintzes Returning to Favor in Homes

NOW that fashion has found that the charm of another day fits into the modern scheme of things so far as frocks are concerned, the home is also turning to a romantic era for inspiration. Chintzes are returning to the earliest days of their existence and copying the designs that were originally made from engraver's drawings. Even the soft colors of the originals have been closely followed. The patterns of fruit, flowers, birds and quaint Chinese motifs are charming backgrounds for period furniture and for decorations of the Provincial type.

Decorative Fabrics Latest for the Home

Whether pure silks or less rich materials, decorative fabrics for the home are stressing new shades and new color harmonies. Chartreuse was found to be so becoming during its heyday of last spring, that it is being adopted for room backgrounds, as well as for frocks. Off white is another popular color that takes its origin from the apparel mode.

Aquamarine, turquoise, and jade follow closely upon the popular trail of chartreuse. Empire Green accompanies the general trends toward a Napoleonic fashion revival. Ardent and cerise-brown are excellent foil colors for this army of the green family.

Hoover Gives the Fish a Rest to Read Mail

Long Key, Fla., Feb. 12 (AP)—Refreshed and rested by two days of excellent fishing in the Atlantic off the Florida keys, President Hoover exercised the presidential prerogative of changing his mind and didn't go fishing early today as he had planned.

Instead he stayed aboard the cabin cruiser Sauntere and devoted his attention to the first batch of mail he has received since he left Washington. The letters were brought to him by special pouch from Miami, having arrived there by airmail.

Other members of the President's party, however, put out in small boats to continue their sport. Word was brought from the Sauntere by Lawrence Richey, one of the President's secretaries, that Mr. Hoover also planned to anchor off Long Key in the Atlantic ocean this afternoon and renew his efforts to land another sail fish such as he caught Monday.

The President has been keeping in close touch with the naval aims conference and was informed today by the activity of Capt. Allen Buchanan, his naval aide, who was in telephone communication with the Navy Department in Washington at least twice.

Letters From Readers

Says Graft Exists in State Services

Editor Boston American:

I have read about Mayor Curley wanting to give a man with a family work regardless of civil service rules and I also read the bunk that Mr. Good win sent out. It wasn't baloney, it was just plain bull. Civil service in this state is in the federal government is a farce. Perhaps this sounds like a "sore head" but I assure you I am not one, but just one who is disgusted with the graft in this country.

Here is a case: I held a rating of 92 per cent in a government civil service test as a chauffeur. I tried for work in government hospitals and was turned down. I knew that the man they had in one hospital had only received a rating of 78 per cent, still he was a friend of a certain doctor.

For three years I drove a state snow plow and I admit I was not hired this year because I refused to take what was offered me. The state sends out trucks and plows to different districts and these are put in public garages. The garage man gets the storage and sells the gas and oil to the state for these plows. The state pays so much an hour for each driver and helper. The garage man keeps the time and sends it to the State House. He receives from the state $1 an hour to pay the driver and 75 cents an hour to pay the helper, but does he do it? No!

He pays whatever he wants to and puts the rest of it in his pocket. I was supposed to be getting $1 an hour, but I got 65 cents and was not put on this year because I would not take 50 cents an hour so that the garage man could get more graft. If I reported this to the state I would get no satisfaction, as these conditions are known by the state man wh has charge of these plows.

A married man and citizen cannot get work on the plows because an irresponsible boy can be hired for less money just to get the chance to drive a plow. One truck was driven this winter by a Canadian citizen and a married American man with a family and who is a voter of this state was turned downwn.

This looks like America for Americans. I wish you could print this letter so that Mr. Goodwin and other officials could read it. I am not looking for publicity so will sign my name DISGUSTED.

If this letter is questioned and facts denied you may print my name and I will give you names of persons involved, what towns and dates to back up this letter. Please do not publish name unless necessary.

State Should Sand Road, Says Driver

Editor Boston American:

We all know how anxious Capt. Parker is to keep the auto accident toll down.

It seems to me that one way to help the situation is to sand the main auto roads during the icy spells such as we have had this winter. They do it in Connecticut. They do it in Rhode Island. I have traveled many miles in both states.

What is the matter with Massachusetts that the same cannot be done? There have been several deaths and serious accidents within the last few weeks, due to cars skidding on the slippery, icy roads, and these were not due to reckless or speedy driving. A little sand would have prevented all of them. I blame the State for these accidents.

Capt. Beaupre of the State police claims the Road Mops is more dangerous than the speeder because, as they drive so slow, others behind them take a chance and pass them, and an accident occurs. He is all wrong. Any man who will take a chance passing a car going 15 miles an hour will take a chance passing one going 50 miles an hour if his car is good for it. If the road is clear, in either case he is not taking a chance. And why hasn't a man a right to drive 15 miles an hour? It is the way he feels like driving, and he has just as much right as another has to drive 50 miles an hour. If everyone drove around 25 miles an hour there would be no accidents. Capt. Parker made the best suggestion that I ever heard when he spoke of manufacturers building cars that could not go over 30 miles an hour or so. One never can put an accident up to a slow driver.

Make the bus drivers toe the mark. Many times I have been crowded off by buses of different lines. And why not limit the width, at least, of some of the vehicles on the road. Some truck drivers buy a truck, and then add another couple of feet onto each side, and in so doing, monopolize the whole road.

Sees Great Benefit in Youth Crusade

Editor Boston American:

May I use your columns to say a strong word in behalf of the youth crusade now going on in Boston at the Park St. Church. This is a splendid movement, inasmuch as it gets youth together in a very good cause. We get them together in games, picnics and other movements for their enjoyment.

This is for their edification in many ways. Robert C. Ropp, chairman of the crusade, is a student of the Boston University School of Theology. He is a young man interested in sports, having played football, baseball and other games with some distinction. Now he is playing a game for service among young people and playing his position very well. He wants to put more of the spiritual into the growing minds of the young and in his efforts deserves every support, moral and social.

State Interference in Boston Affairs

Editor Boston American:

The State of Massachusetts should not interfere with appointments made by the mayor of Boston. That appointments must be confirmed by the civil service commission is contrary to the spirit of home rule.

Why should Boston be subject to this when other cities and towns are free from State control?

MAX HENRY NEWMAN.

Britain Lowest in Birth Rate

Editor Boston American:

May I correct a statement made recently that France stands at the bottom of the world's list of birth rate percentages. This is the order with the ratings: Great Britain is at the bottom, standing 10.3 per 1000; France is next with 18 per 1000; United States with 19 per 1000; Spain 29 per 1000.

I have not been able to get other countries but this list is correct as far as it goes.

New Outbreak in Spain Is Reported

Madrid, Feb. 12 (AP)—Popular unrest, which quieted somewhat after the retirement of Premier Primo de Rivera and the accession of the new Berenguer government, has shown some signs of reawakening.

Both in Madrid and in the provincial cities disturbances of an increasingly serious character have been noted in the past day or so.

The Berenguer government has re-established a censorship on foreign press dispatches from Spain.

Europa Completed

Berlin, Feb. 12 (AP)—The North German Lloyd lines today announced that the 50,000-ton liner, the Europa, which was damaged seriously by fire last year, has been completely repaired and is ready for a maiden trip to New York.

RADIO GROUP AT JOYCE BROS. BANQUET

At the annual banquet of the Joyce Brothers' Benevolent Association, held in the Hotel Westminster, more than 150 employes of Joyce Brothers & Company were initiated into the mysteries of radio broadcasting.

Radio artists, who provide the entertainment during the Joyce Brothers Radio Hour, a new WEEI feature, were introduced to the association members and gave a concert exactly as it would be given in a studio.

Edward W. Joyce, president of the company, in a brief address, told the employes the radio broadcast was another example of the policy of Joyce Brothers to keep pace with changing conditions, and said he had brought the entertainers to the annual banquet meeting because he wanted the members of his organization to be familiar with every phase of the company's activities.

He referred to the the success enjoyed by new links in the Joyce Brothers' chain and praised the managers and store organizations of Somerville, Hyde Park and Cambridge units.

The officers of the Benevolent Association, comprising: John L. Mansfield, president; Miss Mary Kane, vice-president; Miss Loretta McGinn, secretary, and J. Burton Wood, treasurer, all were re-elected, and Edward W. Joyce was elected chairman of the board of directors.

The entertainment was presented by the Joyce Brothers' radio group, Priscilla Hale, soprano; Parker Alden, tenor; Franklin Wells, baritone, and the Joyce Brothers' Radio Orchestra, under the direction of George Venfre.

Law Calls Halt on Clerk's Ambition

London, Feb. 12 (AP)—A fine of £20 or two months' imprisonment was the sentence imposed today upon Frank Biggs, 21-year-old clerk, who placed a "bomb" in the India room of the British Museum 10 days ago in an attempt to manufacture a newspaper story and so forward journalistic ambitions.

The bomb, it was brought out, was virtually a dud—a tobacco tin filled with putty except for two and one-half ounces of some explosive apparently taken from fireworks.

AUTOMOBILE NEWS

BUICK BUILT FOR WINTER CONDITIONS

Arctic winds, ice and snow make the weather that subjects an automobile to the most severe performance tests a car can undergo. This is the season when with the streets covered with ice, and frigid temperatures, the manufacturer of automobile demonstrates the stamina and the worth of the engineering features built under the hood.

The 1930 Buick was designed to withstand the attacks of winter and give the motorist the same reliable performance that is enjoyed in the spring, summer and fall, says S. Eddy, Noyes Buick Co.

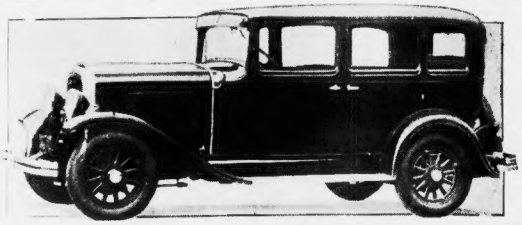
When the thermometer sank during January, Buick engineers stepped in force and buttons, were subjected to new Buicks to test out their conditions in the wind tunnel of the Buick plant. This room is fitted with refrigerating apparatus to produce a sub-zero temperature. Then in this atmosphere the new cars are put through the various operations of the designers before they are offered to the public.

One of the new features that is built into the Buick motor is a device which controls the temperature of the warmth of the engine. When the engine is cold and the temperature is low, the device begins to cool off automatically, automatically opens the shutters, cutting off the flow of air through the radiator and maintaining the engine heat at a maximum period.

The engine is started again after the engine is started again after the water reaches its proper temperature, in efficient operation. In addition to controlling the water temperature, the shutter automatically controls the temperature of the air under the hood and in this way assists in producing efficient carburetion.

The carburetor system used in the 1930 Buick provides heat automatically to warm the fuel mixture and, in addition, there is a manual heat control provided in a convenient lever in the instrument panel. This pre-heating of the combustion mixture insures quick smooth operation and refined exhaust emission.

Longer and Lower DeSoto Body Lines



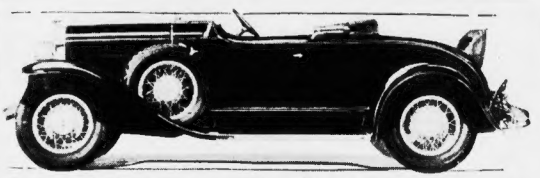
Longer and lower body lines feature the new De Soto Straight Eight Sedan, which is expected to prove one of the most popular of the new line of Straight Eights which De Soto introduced this year. The wider radiator shell profile and the individuality of the body design make the new De Soto Straight Eight distinctive.

DODGE RECORD FOR SALES IS UNUSUAL

"Following the very unusual record of the sale of Dodge Brothers vehicles in Suffolk County in the months of October and November came a still better record in December," says W. M. Little, general manager of the Massachusetts Motor Car Co., distributors. "It is interesting to be able to announce that in October Dodge stood in fifth position in sales compared with all other makes of cars; in November in fourth and December third position. This is taking into consideration the two manufacturers of cars selling at a far less price. One more Dodge car delivery in December would have brought about a tie for second place. No record could be a greater support to the contention that Dodge Brothers' star is once more in the ascendancy and it is an acknowledgment by the automobile buying public of their desire to own Dodge Brothers cars.

"Bringing our information closer up to date was the experience during the Boston Automobile Show recently. The Dodge sales at the show this year were nearly 50 per cent greater than in 1929, in spite of the fact that last year the annual show took place in March, whereas this year it came in January. Nearly 300 people left their names and addresses with the Dodge salesmen, arranging for demonstrations after the show in turned over his post to Cardinal the new eight and the new six, and Pacelli.

Favorite With Women Purchasers



The new series Pontiac Big Six sport roadster is a decided favorite with the women, if the sales recorded to them can be taken as evidence. The smart, racy lines are brought out in the novel design of the machine.

requesting appraisals on their old cars as a step toward making a trade. The first week after the show business was exceptionally good and for the entire month of January the record this year, against last year's, showed a 25 per cent increase.

"A feeling of optimism pervades not only the main store at 883 Commonwealth ave., but also throughout the territory, which covers a section within 20 miles of Boston and includes at present over 20,000 Dodge Brothers car owners."

Fisher Body Lock Foils Auto Thieves

Never leave your automobile unlocked, is the warning broadcast to motorists by the Detroit police department recently. Hundreds of automobile thieves, the police have discovered, are prowling the streets of every large city, awaiting the opportunity to enter some automobile that is either locked or unlocked.

Fisher Body developed and introduced the Protectalok door handles to prevent owners of General Motors cars from becoming victims of this form of robbery.

This Protectalok, which is standard equipment on all cars with body by Fisher, is so constructed that when the door is locked, would pressure be exerted upon the handle to break the lock, a piece of special metal shears off, allowing the handle to turn in its mounting without breaking the lock. The thief is no nearer entering the car than before and the damage that he has inflicted on the lock is negligible.

ESSEX FRAME HAS STRENGTH

The design of the Essex rear frame structure is built to specifications of great strength and maximum rigidity, said F. A. Hawks, president of the Henley-Kimball Company, distributors. This is obtained by using fundamentally sound structural principles. The forward cross member is of unique design. The section of this member is rolled into a pinched square box type, in place of the usual tubular section, and the ends are welded to the side members and forming a projecting lip. This feature further adds to the strength of the box section. This type of box member is extensively used in airplane frame structure, where great strength and lightness of weight are required. Its great strength is due to its non-leaking stress feature, which means that every portion of the section is uniformly stressed under load, with no weak spots open to give way or flex under heavy load. The rear cross member is also of unique design, with its setting fully within the channel of the side rails, holds the side members rigidly together.

A new type U-shaped rear cross member boxes in the ends of the parallel side rails. Its ends project outwardly and provide the means for mounting the rear spring brackets. The U shape of the member makes it unusually strong.

Carbo-Solve Will Remove the Carbon

"All the expense of carbon removal can be eliminated if the motor is treated with Carbo-Solve once every 500 miles," says Frank S. Nox, manager of the Allmite Company of New England, distributors. "Carbo-Solve is a liquid combination of chemicals that has been produced after years of experiments to find something which would dissolve the carbon cake in the engine of the car without damaging the parts of the motor.

"It is shot into the combustion chamber while the engine is warm and allowed to stand there for at least three hours, preferably overnight. In the morning when the car is started the carbon cake has been dissolved and the residue is expelled through the exhaust. Where a car has been allowed to become well clogged with carbon, two applications of Carbo-Solve are sometimes necessary to remove all the carbon.

"Where Carbo-Solve has been used regularly every 500 miles cars have been driven 50,000 miles without having to have the motor head removed to scrape away carbon deposits."

Davidson in Charge of Used Car Sales

Richards-Clarke Motor Co. of 985-87 Commonwealth ave., distributors of the DeSoto Six and Eight, announces the appointment of M. L. Davidson as used car sales manager. Davidson has been associated with the Commonwealth ave. firm in various executive capacities for seven years, and has rounded out a 17-year experience that the present firm will find is well suited to his present position.

Maintains Network of Service Stations

With its nationwide network of dealers, distributors and authorized service stations, the Willys-Overland Company has one of the largest and most efficient organizations in the automotive industry serving the four major price classes. Every station is equipped to render service on cars from the lowest price class, represented by the Whippet Four, to the luxury car class, in which the Willys-Knight Great Six dominates, says Herbert Fitch, district manager.

To facilitate the handling of replacement parts, hundreds of parts distributing stations are operated through the factory branches and distributors. These distributing stations are located at strategical points, thus guarding against unnecessary delay when replacement parts are needed.

New officers of the Marquette Debating Society of Boston College for the present semester are Thomas A. Quinn, '32, president; John E. Reilly, '32, vice-president; Edward D. Burns, '32, secretary; Joseph J. Connor, '32, treasurer, and Edward J. Duff, '33, sergeant-at-arms.

Quinn has been on the college debating team for the past year and is an active member of the Spanish Academy. Burns is secretary of the sophomore class and is on the staff of the "Heights," the college weekly.

Buick Comfort

Buick has made a triple contribution to the cause of riding comfort in the new 1930 models. Double-acting shock absorbers in conjunction with long semi-elliptic springs and an effective roll check eliminator which prevents steering wheel whip are the three contributing factors.

Dine and Dance

Wednesday Whoopee Night at Oasis

Steve Hing, manager of the Oasis Restaurant at 46 Winchester pl., announces that he has arranged a Wednesday night "whoopee" night here with plenty of favors, noisemakers and about a dozen extra acts. Although this restaurant has been open only a month, it is growing popular with night club goers. Plans are being made for Gala Valentine party for Friday night. Vincent and his Oasis society musical orchestra have selected the last numbers of the season to be played with the dance featuring his own. Walter and Wallace, a dapper headwaiter, will be on duty.

Arthur Davis on Bill at Mah Jong

Arthur Davis, former London night club entertainer, is making a first appearance in this country at the Mah Jong restaurant, Manager Wirthof announces.

Zaza and Adele, the dance team at the dinner given by General Dawes during the Washington Board of Trade last month, have been much approval. Art Hoxie, entertainers, and the Bon & Bon, trio are also on the bill. A Valentine party will be staged Friday night with a number of surprises. Favors will be given to some 300 persons and souvenirs will be distributed to all present.

Ann Peters is still singing with Jim Bittel and the Mah Jongers which dance music.

Plan Double-Header at Yen Ho Restaurant

A double-header will be observed Friday night at the Yen Ho restaurant because Valentine's night falls on the evening set aside for Carmel Nite. Many added features are always assured on this night and souvenirs will be distributed.

Tickets for a theatrical production in town will be presented to a lucky patron tonight. Another snappy girl revue is being presented this week with shows at 12:30, 7 and 11 p. m. Frankie Maynard and his New York Night Club orchestra will play.

A Lot of Paint

The state of California will use 9,000 gallons of white paint on highways to keep automobile drivers on the right side of the road and prevent accidents on curves. The state is planning to spend approximately $20,000 on 1400 miles of roads. About 15 gallons of mixture is required for each mile of road stripe.

TWO INJURED BY NEW CHICAGO BOMB BLAST

Chicago, Feb. 12 (AP)—Another [illegible] explosion shook the North Side during the night. Two people were injured, the rear of a building housing the Northwestern Laundry Company was wrecked and the loss was estimated at more than $5,000.

At first a report to a hotel register [illegible] department official late [illegible] the explosion was caused by a bomb.

Several hours later [illegible] there on the South Side a second bomb was [illegible] beneath the basement window [illegible] Roberts, 2d ward [illegible] The house was damaged and nearby windows shattered.

The North Side explosion [illegible] the business [illegible] intersection of Lincoln Ave. and Diversey parkway. Hundreds of windows were broken and automobiles were covered with glass and debris.

The explosion attracted several thousand people. One woman walking on a street to the rear of the laundry was struck by flying glass and her head badly cut. A man passing a block past the alley entrance was injured by the glass when the windshield of his truck was blown in.

Police said he had had no [illegible] and could not account for the [illegible] of his home. He and his wife were thrown from bed but were not injured.

Chicago Gangs Fight Law; 2000 Seized in Roundup

Chicago, Feb. 12 (AP)—The "underworld" [illegible] the "get" today as the gang gunners [illegible] arrangements prepared to fight the law.

The [illegible] to employ lawyers was forced upon the gangsters as their [illegible] were to be required [illegible] using bonds of $1,000 each, the penalty known here for [illegible] carrying concealed weapons.

As the [illegible] opened its offensive on the hats against crime was moved to another sector—the [illegible] of [illegible].

Dr. Robert Lyman Fox, president of the Association of Commerce and head of the "crime committee of seven," has asked the Legislature to mobilize for passage of a modern criminal code to end the barrage of bombs and killings.

The secret committee, composed of civic leaders, has suggested an habitual criminal code, such as the Baumes Act in New York, and an effective statute against carrying concealed weapons.

Should Governor Louis L. Emerson call a special session of the Legislature this spring to consider tax changes, Col. Randolph planned to appeal to the chief executive to include on the calendar revision of the criminal code.

Mayor Thompson Ready to Parley on Payrolls

Chicago, Feb. 12 (AP)—The [illegible] and minor [illegible] of 40,000 city, county and school board employes, hard pressed too much for him, Mayor William Hale Thompson today is expected to approve a parley with the Strawn citizens committee designed to obtain some cash for payrolls.

Lewis E. Meyers, financier, has arranged a conference between members of the Silas H. Strawn committee and a committee of three city officials to find a buyer for the city's 1930 tax anticipation warrants.

Assuming the role of mediator Meyers practically gained the mayor's consent to co-operate with the relief committee with which he has been at loggerheads.

Here's an Idea to Trap Criminals

Chicago, Feb. 12 (AP)—Dr. E. H. Coller, writing from Battle Creek, Mich., offers a solution to the Chicago crime problem.

"I read every day," writes Dr. Coller, "that some suspect or known criminal has escaped up or down an alley. Why not padlock the alleys?"

"That," said Alderman John J. Coughlin, admiringly, "is a great idea."

"She's a Septic!"

Many women want to be, deserve to be, and could be far more popular than they let Doctors know who. Boils appear. They rail [illegible] creep over [illegible].

To remedy obnoxious body odors and bad breath, you must recognize their cause. The trouble is deep-seated. Frankly, it is [illegible]. Semi-constipation, intake millions of systems septic. There may be a daily movement, but all the waste is not eliminated. The matter that remains poisons the blood, and permeates the perspiration. It taints the breath. Nature is signaling for aid and a tiny Calcium Wafer. Calcium wafers work wonders in one's appearance, too. With the interior system sweetened clean, the complexion clears most marvelously. Eyes brighten. Teeth whiten. The tongue is no longer coated, even on arising. And you never need take another harsh cathartic.

Perhaps you are a septic, and don't know it. Try a tiny wafer of calcium, and see! It may make all the difference in the world. Leave harsh, habit-forming cathartics alone. You never need them if you take an occasional calcium wafer.

How a Girl Helped Her Affianced in His Business

By HELEN KLUMPH

From Marion Davies forthcoming all-talking picture by Wanda Tuchok and Edwin Justus Mayer, based on the play "Duley," by Marc Connelly and George Kaufman.

CHAPTER 9

THERE were moments when Gordon thought that dinner would never come to an end. He was too far away from her to hear all that she was saying. He caught a few words of Duley's talk.

"And I always say that Gordon takes his business much too seriously," she was assuring Forbes.

"A game is only a game, he heard her saying a little later, "so I don't see why he allowed himself to get so upset when I trumped his ace."

Gordon was relieved when she had stopped talking about business, but he wished that she would stop talking entirely.

Something seemed to have spoiled Forbes' appetite.

"You must eat to live," Duley assured him, laughingly.

She insisted on helping him to a large, heavily-iced piece of pastry, over his protests that he never ate sweets.

Gordon greeted with relief the general exodus from the table. He hurried after Duley to the living room; he must insist on her letting Forbes alone before the others came in.

"Isn't it wonderful?" Duley asked excitedly.

Gordon looked at her in amazement. Was it possible that she didn't realize what she was doing?

"Sweetheart, please be careful what you say to Mr. Forbes," he pleaded gently.

But such a little pin prick wasn't enough to deflate the balloon of Duley's enthusiasm.

"Isn't it marvelous, Gordie, the way Mrs. Forbes is flirting with Van Dyke?" she asked delightedly.

"That's just what I wanted to warn you about."

"And my plan about Angela's wedding beautifully, she interrupted. "Vincent is just mad about it."

Gordon was so solemn and impatiently, Duley rushed over and kissed him. She whispered significantly, "Just leave everything to me."

BILL ASKS CITY FUEL LICENSES

More than 100 coal pedlars keep their presence to a hearing before the legislative committee on mercantile affairs on two bills designed to vest local authorities with the power to license fuel pedlars, an authority now exercised by the state.

Congressman Charles L. Underhill of Somerville and others favoring the measure held that the present licensing fee, $25.00, is excessive, and should be replaced by a nominal fee to be exacted by local authorities.

Maj. Francis Meredith, state sealer of weights and measures, spoke in opposition to the bills. He pointed out that the license fee covers not only the sale of fuel but certain other "wares and merchandise" as well, and that the present law which became operative last September and which he said is working satisfactorily is "not yet cold."

Present Pageant for Tercentenary

"Toward Freedom of the Soul," a tercentenary pageant written for the churches of Massachusetts for use in their celebrations of this year by Eleanor Wood Whitman was presented for the first time in Somerville, at the Unitarian Hall under the auspices of the Somerville Federation of Women's Church Societies.

Seven churches of Somerville were represented in those taking part, Union Square Baptist Church, Grace Baptist Church, First Baptist Church, Broadway Winter Hill Congregational Church, College Avenue Methodist Church, Broadway Methodist Church and Flint Street Methodist Church.

Woman Sought as Fake Collector

Alleged to have defrauded more than a score of South End shopkeepers by collecting funds in the name of the Rescue Mission at 1 Dover st., an elderly woman, dressed in black, is being sought by police.

The woman, it was learned, entered a number of stores and asked for funds for the Mission. In a number of stores she was given money, but a storekeeper who became suspicious of her told her to return later. He then notified the police. She did not appear at the appointed time.

GOODWIN FOR COURT RULING ON AUTO BILL

Requests Legislature Not to Act at Present on Compulsory Insurance Plan

Attacking the report of the special insurance commission on compulsory automobile insurance "as a palpably overdone piece of special pleading for the insurance company," Frank A. Goodwin today demanded that his state fund bill be submitted by the Legislature to the Supreme Court for an opinion on its constitutionality.

The chairman of the Boston Finance Commission filed his petition with the speaker of the House. He asks that the legislative committee on insurance hold no hearings on his initiative petition for a state fund until the court has settled the question of constitutionality, which has been questioned by the special insurance commission.

"This apparently inspired document," he declared, referring to the commission's report, "used up pages to prove that my bill is not a state fund; that the state has no control except to appoint its own officials, and then there are pages more to condemn state funds in general and this one in particular. There is no fear that the Supreme court will find this bill unconstitutional after reading the decision upholding the Boston Elevated control bill. The attorney-general and the Supreme court both say my bill, in structure, is similar to the Boston Elevated bill.

"Here is what the attorney-general says: 'It creates a private corporation which is to be managed by a board of commissioners who are in much the same situation with respect to their duties as are the trustees of the Boston Elevated Railway Company,' for example.

"Now what do the state street bankers and insurance interests expect the Supreme Court to do? Find my bill unconstitutional after giving the public control bill a clean bill of health?

"My bill provides for a board of three appointed by the Governor to manage a mutual insurance company of which every motor vehicle owner who registers becomes a policy holder, to be managed without profit and with no power to tax the home owners to pay profits to individuals."

ALLEN ORDERS STATE OFFICIALS TO PROVIDE WORK FOR JOBLESS

DEPARTMENT HEADS TOLD TO ACT NOW

Necessary Undertakings That Can Be Done at This Time Will Be Launched

With a view to taking up slack employment Governor Allen today called in department heads and directed them to proceed immediately with certain necessary public work.

The department heads included Commissioner of Conservation William W. L. Bazeley, Commissioner of the Metropolitan District David R. Kniston, Commissioners Richard Hale and Herman A. MacDonald of the public works department, Commissioner of Labor and Industries E. Leroy Sweetser, Civil Service Commissioner Ellis H. Goodwin and Representatives Arthur W. Jones and Henry L. Shattuck of the house ways and means committee.

As a result of the governor's action, the departments of conservation, metropolitan district and public works will immediately inaugurate certain branches of their public works which can be put into operation at this time.

These activities it was announced will provide employment for many men throughout the state.

It was also announced that the governor was communicating with the cities and towns toward requesting them to co-operate with the state administration in advancing necessary work.

Everybody who has ever been in an automobile with a "back seat driver" will want to tune in on Nor So Dumb," the fourth broadcast in a series of radio programs on Safer Massachusetts scheduled to go on the air from WEZ and WRZA at 6:45 p. m. Saturday.

The radio playlet is built around a comedy of errors that will afford a lesson in safety as well as amusement. It promises to be the most interesting so far of the series dedicated to the conservation of human life by the Governor's committee on street and highway safety. A broadcast in the series goes on the air every Saturday at the same hour.

Medical Center Women to Report

Boston women working as members of the women's committee of the N. E. Medical Center $1,500,000 fund campaign will hold their second report meeting at a luncheon at Hotel Statler at 12:30 tomorrow.

Mrs. Richard M. Saltonstall, chairman of the committee, will preside and call for the reports. The campaign now stands at $607,738, the sum representing $43,000 secured from those invited to see the Boston Dispensary, the Floating Hospital and the Tufts School of Medicine combined into one institution.

Vets' Football Men to Get Sweaters

Sweaters will be presented to the football squad of the Burnham Manning Post 105, Veterans of Foreign Wars at the first smoker of the season, to be given tomorrow evening at V. F. W. Hall on Galen st., Watertown.

The fire apparently started in the clerks room and the chief damage was done to computing machines. It was necessary to cut through the walls to get at the flames. An investigation is being made.

COUNTY AID FOR FARM SCHOOL OPPOSED

Worcester Commissioner Says Good Roads Are More Important

A bill providing that the trustees in Worcester County be authorized to provide vocational education in agriculture, household arts and practical arts was heard before the legislative committee on agriculture.

Burton W. Prince of Ashburnham told the committee that the bill was backed by the Worcester County Selectmen's Association.

Prince said that they want to have agriculture taught to the young people so that the farming sections of the State may be developed. He estimated that the cost of the project would add between five and 10 cents to the tax bill of the residents of the county.

Other speakers in behalf of the bill were Parker T. Pearson superintendent of schools at Westborough; James W. Vose principal of Cushing Academy; Howard P. Gilmore of Westboro; Willard A. Munson, director of the extension service at the Massachusetts Agricultural College; John E. Gifford of the North high school of Worcester; Daniel W. O'Brien, in charge of the vocational agricultural department of the Jamaica plain high school of Boston, and Dr. H. W. Stimson of the State department of education.

There was vigorous opposition to the bill. Warren A. Goodale, one of the county commissioners of Worcester County, said that if the Legislature wants to help the farmers it should give them permanent good roads so that they can get their produce to market.

At present there are dirt roads which are impassable for four months of the year, so that the farmers cannot even get the services of a horse in case of emergency during the winter, he said.

He said that the county is planning a large roadbuilding program and ought not be saddled with the expense of an experiment like the one proposed.

Other speakers in opposition were: Walter D. Allen, assistant city solicitor of Worcester; Representatives Edward J. Kelley of Worcester, Clyde H. Swan of Barre and Edward W. Staves of Southbridge.

TRADE SCHOOL FOR STATE URGED

Advocates Would Raise Cash to Aid $3,000,000 Project; Labor to Oppose It

Establishment of a $3,000,000 school for teaching young men and women trades and industrial crafts was urged by William J. McDonald, Boston real estate man and others before the legislative committee on education.

While no opposition was heard by the committee a representative of the American Federation of Labor asked for an opportunity to oppose the project at a later date. This was granted and the hearing was continued to Feb. 21.

In addition to McDonald those appearing for the proposal included Prof. Edward F. Miller of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, A. H. Kenyon Boston advertising consultant, William C. Crawford, president of the Boston trade school; Robert O. Small head of the vocational education division of the state department of education, and Rep. Thomas J. Carroll of Revere.

McDonald said that if a state appropriation is made for the school the proposed location for which is on filled-in land between Quincy Heights and Revere Beach, he and friends of the project will obtain substantial donations for its realization.

In this connection he said he and a group of persons favoring the project would be willing to contribute $250,000 for the undertaking. The land would be purchased at a price fixed by the state itself he said.

Prof. Miller said the demand for trained men is greater than the supply now being turned out by technical institutions.

Kenyon pointed out that the product of Massachusetts industries has been built on the supply of its skilled labor and technicians and that at present the greatest concern of manufacturers is their inability to obtain enough trained workers.

Crawford said that the superintendents of the majority of large industrial plants are men trained in foreign countries and that the supremacy of American industry depends in large measure on the ability of this country's schools to turn out trained workers and managers.

World's Fancy Skating Stars Show at Arena Tonight

SONJA HENIE FEATURE OF CARNIVAL

THE world's leading fancy skaters will appear at the Arena tonight in an ice carnival, under the auspices of the Skating Club of Boston, for the benefit of the Convalescent Home of the Children's Hospital.

Miss Sonja Henie of Oslo, Norway, four times world's titleholder for women's singles; Karl Schafer of Vienna, Austria, men's champion; Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Brunet of France, world pair titleholders, and Mr. and Mrs. Melita Brunner and Ludwig Wrede of Vienna, top the list of foreign stars who will perform.

Miss Maribel Vinson of Winchester, who finished third in the world's tests, and holder of the United States title, will be among the American stars who will appear.

Mrs. Theresa Weld Blanchard and Nat Niles, and Miss Melita Brunner and Ludwig Wrede of Vienna, runner-up in the world's competitions, will appear in a couples act.

Miss Beatrix Loughran, former title holder, will give a specialty scarf dance. Willie Frick, an instructor of the Boston Skating Club of Boston, will present a candle dance. J. Lester Maddock is in charge of an entertaining comedy act.

The Romany Gypsy quadrille with Mrs. Blanchard as queen, Mr. Niles as king and George H. Browne as gypsy chief, will be presented, with 32 skaters from Boston, Cambridge and New York in the supporting cast.

Thirty-six children, all under 12 years of age, will present the "Surprise Package," a novelty number.

MR. BOSTON

by JACK CONWAY

Jack Conway

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 12.—"Mrs. Jack Sharkey was tendered a birthday luncheon at the Roney Plaza," said Mr. Boston today.

"Mrs. John F. Buckley was the hostess.

"Mrs. George Lee of Worcester and a dozen attended the affair.

"Mrs. Sharkey received a jadeite pendant on a pearl necklace and ear rings to match as a birthday gift from her husband. Jack also presented his wife with a flock of American beauties.

"Sharkey's fine home life has been one of the chief reasons for his success as a boxer. When not in the training camp, the American heavyweight champion pugilist spends his time in Stamford, Conn., with his wife and their three children."

MR. BOSTON paused for a few seconds.

"Go on with the show," went on the veteran. "Chauncey Keates, probably better known as Good Time Charley, of Point of Pines, was in town accompanied by Mrs. Keates.

"Charley will take the Florida breezes until after the Sharkey-Scott bout on February 27. He asked me to inform Nick Hadley and the rest of the boys that he will then be prepared to stage a home coming or some other sort of a party as soon as he get back home.

"Former Congressman J. J. O'Connell is also on deck. It came over from Palm Beach to see Sharkey go through his trainings at the Miami Beach Kennel Club. Joe got assistance recently and he had his appendix clipped. He says southern sunshine has restored his vitality.

"THERE are no many Boston and New England folks here that if it were not for the palm trees and warm breeze one might believe he was parading along Tremont street.

"Down here the ladies do their shopping in their beach pajamas and nobody even gives them a tumble, that is, nobody does after being here a few days.

"I WAS with Johnny Buckley when a stranger stepped up to him and purchased 15 $25 tickets.

"The other night at the 12th Hollywood Country Club a party of New Yorkers purchased 40 $25 tickets from Mike Jacobs of the Garden. The choice seats are going fast.

"Joy Boynton, in charge of the Garden's box office, who is very conservative, says the fistic carnival will net more than $400,000.

"Vittorio Campolo has established his training camp at Coral Gables. He didn't want to be annoyed making the auto trip to Sharkey's camp. Vittorio, by the way, is much excited because the boys of the press refer to him as a Spaniard. He asserts he was

M'COY SET FOR HARD MATCH

Bob "Rubber" McCoy, brilliant young heavyweight from Cambridge, will step into the hardest test of his mat career tomorrow night when he will meet Renato Gardini, Italian ace in the feature match at the Arena.

Gardini has held his own with or beaten Strangler Lewis, Joe Stecher, Joe Malcewicz, John Pesek, Jimmy Londos and Dick Shikat. He is backed by one of the best records in the game, a fiery Italian with tremendous strength and marvellous skill. He is confident that he will easily outwrestle McCoy.

Bat Nelson Would Fight Charlie White

Chicago, Feb. 12 (AP).—Shades of Goldfield and Reno! Battling Nelson is yearning for a ring comeback.

No sooner had the former world's lightweight champion read about Charlie White's comeback campaign than he thrust out his chest and challenged him.

"If White is good enough to come back, so am I," the once durable Dane said. "There is many a good sock in these fists of mine, and the fight promoters who are digging the cemeteries for good fighters can throw away their spades."

Nelson wants to meet White in the latter's comeback try at the Coliseum February 21.

Walker and Lomski After Slattery's Title

Detroit, Feb. 11 (AP).—Mickey Walker announced tonight that he had made an agreement with the management of Olympia Stadium to fight Jimmy Slattery of Buffalo here for the light heavyweight championship at any time a match can be arranged.

Walker is training for a bout Friday night with Leo Lomski, and Lomski declared that he, too, is willing to meet Slattery, provided he beats Walker here. Lomski added that Slattery twice met him, he already has had several chances and has turned them down.

Jack Conway Picks Maloney to Beat Al Friedman

MIAMI BEACH, FLA., Feb. 12—"I regret I am not in Boston tonight to see Jim Maloney and Al Friedman battle at the Troy benefit show," said Mr. Boston today.

"I would like to pay tribute to Jimmy Troy and at the same time witness what promises to be a great fight.

"Then, too, I'd like to witness Eddie Mack getting the Argonne A. A. under way again.

"I am picking Shamus to grab the duke tonight. He has been boxing in good form and, in my opinion, carries too many guns for even a sturdy battler like Friedman. Al will give Shamus plenty of opposition, but Maloney should end up with the decision."

Bruins Thrill Fans in 6-5 Win Over Toronto

By BILL GRIMES

UNTIL the overtime period of the game against Toronto, Bruin fans were under the impression that they had been offered every known variety of thrills. But they had never seen any such exciting hockey as developed when the Boston outfit was trailing with only four minutes to go.

With few exceptions everyone believed that the Bruins were on their way to [illegible] long their second home game of the season. And there were good reasons for such predictions. But with in a couple of minutes, Dit Clapper and Eddie Shore broke through with tallies which gave the Bruins their 27th victory of the season. The score was 6 to 5.

Bill Grimes

Although the Bruins came through for Mickey Mackay, who was handling the team, in the absence of Art Ross, the judgment used by Mickie could be questioned. In all probability MacKay was nervous. It is a tough spot to put anyone in.

He used only the first and second lines until 15 minutes of the first period had been played. Unaccustomed to so much work, the overtaxing of the Thunderbolt and Dynamite lines in the first chapter took its toll during the remainder of the game.

The Gainor-Weiland-Clapper line was in action during the last four minutes of the third period and they did not get relief until the extra period was four minutes old.

That was far too long a stretch against the fast skating Maple Leafs. Gainor, Weiland and especially Clapper were "shot." They fought gamely but it was a physical impossibility for them to check back and they lost their offensive punch.

The game was exciting from the start but the climax came when Eddie Shore broke through the five man defense and battled his way through some of the toughest going encountered at the Garden this season, for the winning goal. He was forced to make at least three charges before he finally succeeded in beating Lorne Chabot.

Although Dit Clapper was credited to the tieing goal, which he scored with a beautiful shot from the wing, George Owen did the work which made it possible for the Bruins to pull back on even terms with the Leafs. Owen went down and outgeneraled the Toronto outfit in rare style. Then he slipped the puck to Weiland who passed it along with Clapper for a goal.

The second [illegible] plays that scored, but judging from the turmoil which broke loose when Eddie Shore caged the winning mark, hundreds must have been holding out when Clapper counted.

The Bruins did not play up to the usual form. They displayed a tendency towards carelessness. Apparently they held the Maple Leafs too cheaply. Two of the Toronto goals were scored while Eddie Shore was in the penalty box, but in effect that, Boston scored during and winning goal with Ace Bailey in the cooler.

Dit Clapper comes up with about as many freak goals as any player in the N. H. L. Last season, he scored when his shot caromed off the wire screen, but John Ross Roach in the back and dropped into the nets. Last night he attempted to pass out from the corner, the puck struck Chabot's skate and went in for a goal.

Tufts Five to Play at Medford Tonight

Phil Scott's 'Secret Punch' Ridiculed by Sharkey

EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

SQUIRE SET TO TRADE BLOWS

By JACK SHARKEY
American Heavyweight Champion

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 12. [illegible] Phil Scott, Britis[illegible] champion, believes [illegible] me out with a secret punch when we clash at the dedication of the new stadium at Miami City on February 22. Perhaps that secret punch Scott [illegible] what [illegible] did hard.

[illegible]

In answer to such a threat, [illegible] to forget all about boxing, [illegible] and [illegible] a few more of those [illegible] for confident I can be the one [illegible] and up beat under a fusillade [illegible] of whips.

[illegible]

I KNEW then that Dempsey would never return to the ring again. He has his share of the world of the world and does not care to [illegible] more of the [illegible] women or with the boys [illegible].

Even though I was I have liked [illegible] battled Dempsey many [illegible] up out of sorts [illegible] was going [illegible] in [illegible] out [illegible] to [illegible] Paw on punch [illegible] to look Willie Godfrey [illegible] on Michigan Boulevard [illegible] Milones and several others.

Therefore I won't [illegible] guess coming out of the corner when we [illegible] I am going to get the notion of [illegible] punch of blow. I am the [illegible] be Bill Champion.

I ASKED Tommy Loughran to come here to help condition [illegible] me but what Scott [illegible] not done as a [illegible] for [illegible] on [illegible] Scott [illegible] asking [illegible] and [illegible] of what [illegible].

Loughran [illegible] a [illegible] dog left hand and plenty of speed. These assets would help to [illegible] me for my fight with Scott. [illegible] Loughran is boxing Pierre Charles on the same card as Phil Scott and myself he would also benefit from my workouts.

THERE will be few dull moments for me from now until I enter the ring with Scott. Training is [illegible] I [illegible] exercises I have white [illegible] and [illegible] and [illegible] to get my all into [illegible] condition for [illegible].

I hope that the people of American [illegible] will depend on what I do when I [illegible] should see that the Irishman [illegible] and outside of [illegible] are thoroughly convinced that Am [illegible] still rule the roost [illegible] pecked 1930 [illegible] heavies and [illegible].

LOWEST-PRICED EIGHT IN THE WORLD

The fact that the new De Soto Straight Eight is the lowest-priced Eight in the world does not mean that one iota of quality has been sacrificed.

From every standpoint—performance, comfort, luxury, safety and economy—this newest Chrysler-engineered creation achieves a quality exceeding that of any other car in its price class, and of many that list well above it.

The features briefly described below are highlights of its quality construction that lift the new De Soto Straight Eight above all limitations of price.

Unisteel Construction of Chassis and Body—
A new and radical departure. 18 points of superiority over existing practice . . . Body and chassis designed as a unit, eliminating body sills and all other wooden parts . . . the two are bolted directly together, and are mutually supporting and mutually flexible.

Hydraulic Four-Wheel Brakes—
The only type of brake in which equalization is inherent, automatic and permanent. The braking pressure exerted is always identical on all four wheels. Hydraulic brakes are simple, rapid, smooth and quiet, and they eliminate a multitude of oiling and greasing points.

$965
AND UP—F. O. B. DETROIT

Down-Draft Carburetion—
Employing a principle which permits gravity to assist in conducting vaporized mixture into the cylinders. The use of this type of carburetion results in a substantial increase in power, without increasing fuel consumption and cost of operation.

Rubber-Cushioned Spring Shackles—
All shackles mounted in vulcanized rubber—no metal-to-metal contacts—no need for lubrication—wear-proof and quiet after many thousands of miles.

Full-Pressure Engine Lubrication—
Oil is supplied to all bearings by positive, pump circulation through drilled passages. Cored passages are not used because of resulting roughness, and the additional hazard of stoppage due to core sand residue.

In addition to these outstanding quality features of the new De Soto Straight Eight, there are many others worthy of mention, and generally found only on cars of much higher price. These include Torsional Impulse Neutralizer, Mechanical Fuel Pump, Fuel Filter, Air Cleaner, Thermostatic Heat Control, Hydraulic Shock Absorbers, Non-glare Windshield, Cowl Ventilators and Rust-proof Parts.

EVERYONE should pay particular attention to keeping hair brushes and combs absolutely clean. Wash them with hot water and soap or hot water and a small quantity of household ammonia. Combs and brushes are natural nests for bacteria germs and must be clean.

BEAUTY ILLS TRACED TO LACK OF CARE

Expert Tells the Girls a Few Important Things to Know

By JOSEPHINE HUDDLESTON

IT has been a long, long time since I mentioned the necessity of keeping toilet articles clean, but spring is coming and for some reason my mind is on the cleanliness of accessories today rather than on cosmetics. Anyway, it's time this subject was discussed again, for so many beauty ills can be traced to unclean toilet articles. Then, too, daintiness depends upon cleanliness.

We wouldn't think of wearing soiled clothes several days in succession, yet girls who are immaculate about clothes often carry the same powder and rouge puff for weeks on end. This isn't consistent, it isn't clean and it isn't conducive to greater beauty.

Only a few moments are required to rinse out a powder or rouge puff so if you have only two or three they can be washed out at night. By morning they will be dry and ready for use.

A wash basin filled with warm water, a scattering of soap flakes or the bar of soap you use for your hands, a moment or two of rubbing and squeezing, rinsing, and the job is done!

The nap on puffs is apt to become harsh after washing and so when dry it is advisable to rub the puffs gently between the hands to make them soft again.

When you stop to consider how soiled a sanitary cream remover becomes when it is passed over the face you will realize how really soiled a powder puff becomes. The clean nap, however, frequently misleads us unless the puff actually is grimy in appearance. Even though the puffs appear reasonably clean the chances are that the powder from yesterday and the day before as well as the dust and impurities have sifted into the nap when the puff was rubbed over the face.

Dandruff often is stubborn simply because the brushes, combs, pins, nets, caps and hats are not kept in an immaculately clean state. Dandruff spreads when the tiny flakes adhere to toilet articles and are thus placed back onto the scalp. In ridding the scalp of dandruff it is far more important that all articles which touch the head be thoroughly cleansed and sterilized than to take such drastic pains with lotions and ointments for cleaning up the condition. None of these preparations will be of lasting benefit unless all the dandruff germs are destroyed.

A girl who wouldn't dream of letting her hair go without at least one shampoo a week often doesn't wash her brush and comb once in a month. Again this inconsistency is keeping her from the joy of realizing all the beauty that could be hers.

Finger-nail files, orange wood sticks, cuticle scissors and such manicuring accessories should be washed and boiled for five minutes at least once each week.

Cold-cream patters and massage devices not only should be rinsed with good soapy water, but should be rinsed carefully, and the last rinse water should contain a few drops of antiseptic to sterilize them further.

Even though the amount of soil that is retained on toilet preparations is small, it must be removed for sanitary reasons as well as for beauty.

Nancy Page Quilt Club -:-

THE ALPHABET QUILT—BLOCK 24—YOU

THERE were still three letters in the alphabet, X, Y, Z. Had Nancy used them all she would have had an uneven number of blocks in her quilt. The quilt had been planned to have six rows of blocks with four-letter blocks in each row, making 24 blocks in all.

In talking it over with the other club members they decided to use only the "Y."

Of course, the three letters could have been put on the same block. But Nancy had another scheme.

"Why not let the 'Y' stand for 'you' the person who is going to get the quilt? In my case it would stand for Joan since it is for her that I am making the quilt.

Then I plan to write her name at the bottom left hand of the block. That will identify it as hers in years to come. I hope, you know, that she will like it well enough to keep it and pass it on to her children's children.

Then in the right hand corner I am going to put my initials and the year in which I finished the quilt. So often in looking at old quilts we have wished that we knew just when they were made. In this way I'd identify the owner, the maker and the year.

"Grace Roberts, who is making the quilt for her daughter, Clarice, will write, 'Clarice Roberts' in the left hand corner bottom. Then in the right she will put her own initials, G D R and 30 for the year 1930. The Y O U in the block itself stands for the child whose name is at the bottom left. As her mother shows it to her she will say, 'Mrs. block is for you, Isobel your name, Clarice Roberts.'

The group liked the idea and said just how it worked.

A square of white gingham 6½ inches in size was cut and laid over the paper pattern. By holding the two against the window pane it was possible to trace the letters "YOU." When these were traced the work was nearly done.

Fine outline or chain stitch was used to work the letters. Then the child's or recipient's name was written by each person in the lower left hand of the block and the maker's own initials were put in lower right hand. The date was added.

These names and dates were worked in fine running stitch.

Now the blocks were ready to be put together. All blocks were given a final pressing.

They were put in place, following the diagram given in the instruction leaflet which may be had at no cost by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the paper and asking for the leaflet. Perhaps you sent for it earlier. An interlining may be used. In that case it will be wise to tie the top and bottom at intervals, say at the four corners of each embroidered block.

Or a running scroll or simple vine may be quilted the full length of the colored strips which put the blocks together.

The quilt is a joy to behold when finished, worthy of being a real heirloom.

The club members were really sorry to see the work come to an end.

BACK BLOCKS SUPPLIED

In the event you have missed any of the Alphabet Quilt blocks previously published in this paper, please send 10 cents for each block missing. Also enclose stamped, addressed envelope. Address Nancy Page, care of this paper.

A DIRECTION LEAFLET that will aid in making the Alphabet Quilt will be sent free to any reader sending a stamped, addressed envelope to Nancy Page in care of this paper.

Fine Dinner in a Hurry

Martha Lee

CHICKEN and golden bantam corn and new potatoes! Doesn't that sound good? And don't these foods seem impossible in thinking of a quick dinner, foods that would not only take a long time to cook, but that would only be available at a certain time of the year? Of course, one may have chicken any time, but not always, as when one would think, golden bantam corn and new potatoes.

However, the housewife may always have these ready for a dinner in a few minutes if she will add to the foods on her emergency shelf whole chicken canned, golden bantam corn canned either on the ear or the whole kernel cut off the cob so that the corn is whole grained instead of creamy style, and little new potatoes canned, which are whole, round little new potatoes, already perfectly cooked and ready to be browned in the oven if one wishes, or cut up and fried or just warmed up in their own juice, served with butter sauce and parsley.

The canned whole chicken which is now on the market is packed in a delicious chicken jelly, which may be melted into a broth if the housewife wishes, or may be served cold with the chicken, if she elects to have cold chicken, and carves the beautifully plump, deliciously cooked chicken as it comes from the can.

If she wishes to cut up the chicken she may have a rich friassee, but care must be taken with the already thoroughly cooked chicken as it will part company from the bones very easily. The same care must be taken if the chicken is fried, though this may be done very satisfactorily by cutting the chicken and carefully controlling the parts in salted flour and frying in a very hot skillet as quickly as possible.

Here is a menu for this delicious and quick dinner:

Fried, Fricassee or Cold Chicken
Corn Saute Little New Potatoes
Asparagus Tip Salad
Raspberry Shortcake Coffee

CORN SAUTE

Empty a can of the delicious golden kernels of corn into a saucepan which has been buttered and layered hot. Season well with corn, salt and paprika. Saute and serve hot.

LITTLE NEW POTATOES

Empty can of potatoes into covered pan and heat in own liquor. Make butter sauce, pour over them when hot, and sprinkle with grated parsley.

RASPBERRY SHORTCAKE

If you want to make your own cake, cream ¼ cup butter, add ½ cup sugar gradually, and 1 egg well beaten. Mix and sift 1 cup flour, 2 tsps. baking powder and ¼ tsp. salt, adding alternately with ¼ cup milk to the first mixture. Beat thoroughly and bake in a buttered round tin. Or use cake layers or sponge cake purchased at the grocery. Spread layers thickly with canned raspberries and top with thickly beaten cream.

Faithfully yours,
MARTHA LEE

Health in Winter Sports

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

WINTER sports are becoming more and more popular each season. Fashions favor them, society favors them, and so do the doctors.

If you are tired out after the whirl of the city, of business and social cares, why not try a change of scene? And winter sports? Nothing is more healthgiving than a change of scene and some form of recreation which combines with it pleasure and the benefit of health.

What is more wonderful than a winter's day on the mountain sides or in the woods? You may ski there, or snow-shoe, for miles at a time, through unbeaten paths. With the snow, pure-white and deeper, perhaps, than your head, you see nature from a viewpoint that you cannot see in any other way.

Such exercise plays upon every nerve and muscle of the body. Your senses are keener, the blood is stimulated into new life, and with it new vigor comes. It often wonder that so many of us neglect these rare sports of the winter-time.

And after you have had from the day's outing, it may be that kindred souls have gotten there before you. A blazing log or two, a good supper, some drowsy bantering, and you are to bed! Sleep is good. Maybe it never was so good?

Skating is a wonderful exercise. Everybody can have this sport without going far for it. In the cities, now, are the out-or-door skating rinks where, for a small sum, the populace go, skates in hand, any day or evening. This has always been a fascinating sport, and in grandmother's time it was considered as much of an accomplishment to skate well as to dance well.

Never before, perhaps, have the out-door sports been more in evidence than this season. At St. Moritz, Lake Placid, in Canada, or some of the mountain schools with their winter carnivals, people flock for healthful sports. All this gives an added impetus to sports everywhere.

Don't spend all your recreation time in the close atmosphere of public places. Be out-of-doors for as much time as you possibly can.

Muscular exercise is important because it stirs up the chemical and biological changes of the body.

The Marry-Go-Round and the Home

By HELEN ROWLAND

NOBODY will deny that the HOME is the world's greatest institution.

To some men it is a hotel, to some an asylum, and to some a reformatory. And, if those aren't "institutions," what ARE they?

Lots of society men are merely transient "guests" in their homes, dropping in only to eat, sleep, shave, and change from their tuxedo or their golfknickers into their evening clothes. Occasionally they meet their wives who have just returned from Florida and are packing up for Paris.

Other men regard "home" as a rest camp or a sanitarium, where they can go to be nursed, when they are too ill or fagged out to go any further else, and can linger until they get back on their feet and can get OUT again.

To many a husband it is merely a matter of treading softly, muffling the bells, suppressing the children and listening to "symphony" until the Good Provider can get "back to the office" and begin again to "slave for the things that make the wife and family happy."

Then, there is the Home Reformatory, with a male patient all unsuspectingly, when he is under the anaesthetic of love, and where no warden after the honeymoon to discover that the little woman married him in order to reform, remodel and "improve" him—in everything from his cravats and his grammar to his table manners and his evil habits.

The husband in such a home feels like a "suspect" or a "truant," constantly under observation, and subject to punishment or reprimand every time he indulges in free speech or unwittingly breaks a "rule."

Or, it may be the wife who is being uplifted and remodeled. Some men and women are born reformers, and when they find that they can't run the rest of the world, they take it out on the hapless creature they married, and thus vindicate themselves.

Finally, there is the asylum home, where the Man-of-the-house is regarded as "harmless," but not quite responsible, where nobody takes him seriously, and where he is treated only as a sort of necessary evil, which has to be endured around the place.

Even a well-regulated home is too often just an "institution," where a man discovers that everything is going to be run on a schedule, and where he is aroused by an alarm clock, expected to show up on the dot for dinner and has the lights turned out on him at 10 p. m.

When is a home NOT a home? When it's an "institution" which is only too often.

That's why so many men and women spend their days wondering how they "got INTO it"—and devising ways and means to get OUT of it!

Your walls and a lot of mahogany furniture never made a HOME! It takes three to make a home, you know, the woman and plenty of love!

Dulcy Piles Up the Agony for Gordon

pression that everyone was having a good time. A sublime contentment came over her, though Forbes stood immovable, glowering first at his wife who was deeply absorbed in what Van Dyke was saying to her, and then at his daughter, who was edging toward the porch with Vincent.

"Oh, Mr. Forbes, I'll never forgive my butler for spilling that wine on you."

In her deep concern, Dulcy planted herself directly in front of him, cutting off his view of his wife.

Angela seized his momentary distraction as an opportunity to slip out on the terrace, quickly followed by Vincent.

Only once, during a lull, Vincent's voice could be heard declaiming, "You're like a wonderful, warm dawn—just your magic presence—" and Forbes' shudder was hardly more noticeable than Bill's.

Dulcy busied herself with pouring the coffee, and Forbes looked around for a chair that was as far away from her as possible. A good, stiff chair that would support his aching back.

"Oh, no, Mr. Forbes," she protested, as she handed him a cup. "You must take the easy chair."

His protests were drowned out in her insistence, and Gordon's attempts to signal her to lay off were unavailing.

"Now, not a word," Dulcy warned him playfully. "I know you're polite and want to leave it for me, but I insist on your having it. I wouldn't dream of anyone else having it but you. Now sit right down in it—that's right—way back. It's awfully comfortable, just the thing after eating."

As usual, Dulcy was doing her best with the worst possible results.

Forbes sat down defiantly, with the air of a man who yields in a minor battle only that he may concentrate his forces on the big struggle to come.

Tomorrow—Pleasure or punishment.

Lovejoy -:- Serial by Beatrice Burton

CHAPTER 29

THE girl shook her head once more.

"No ma'am, she said flatly. 'Not for a little money like that. I been saving up a long time so I can go back to the Old Country and see my folks pretty quick. You give me two more bills like this one and I give you back your letter, I will."

Lovejoy tried to be calm. But once more her anger flared up . . . To be held up like this by a girl who had lived in her house for weeks! A common, ignorant girl who couldn't even speak English! To let a girl like Hilda outwit her!

You know that what you're doing to me is called 'blackmail,' don't you?" she asked furiously. "You know I could have you put in jail for stealing my letters, too, don't you?—Now you go and get them and give them to me this instant or I'll phone the police!"

Hilda walked into her own room.

A moment later she came walking out of it. She had on her hat and coat.

"You get out of my way," she said when Lovejoy tried to stop her. "I'm going straight down to Mister's office, and I'm going to show him all the things I've got—and I'm going to tell him such things about you! You bad woman!"

Lovejoy stood with her back to the kitchen door, facing her.

If she goes out of this house like this, she thought, the agony, all my peace and happiness go out with her!

She braced herself.

"Hilda," she said, struggling to be calm and cool headed, "you want a hundred more dollars from me, don't you?" And that's all you want. Isn't it?—You don't really want to go down to Mr. Nicholson's office and tell him things about me, do you? I've never hurt you, Hilda—"

"You open that door!" Hilda interrupted, her high blue eyes fixed on the backdoor key in Lovejoy's shaking hands. "Open it!"

What might have happened Lovejoy never knew, if Aline had not come up the back steps at that moment and knocked on the kitchen door.

With a great gasp of relief, Lovejoy turned and unlocked the door for her.

"What's all the fuss about?" she asked, coming into the kitchen.

She stared at Hilda in mock amazement.

Hilda's not leaving, is she?" she asked. "You're not letting a wonderful girl like Hilda go, are you? Why, Hilda, if I didn't have such a good maid I'd give you a place in my house this minute! What's wrong, anyway?"

It was Hilda who answered.

She threw me out!" she said violently. "She's guilty of me because I know things about her. She's afraid I'm going to tell Mister about her and what she do. She throw me out!"

Aline nodded sympathetically. Then she turned to Lovejoy.

"I hear the baby crying," she said to her. "Suppose you run and take care of him. I'll settle all this with Hilda. Hilda and I have always been great friends."

Lovejoy was glad to get out of the kitchen. . . . After all, this was Aline's affair and it was distinctly up to her to settle it. If anyone was going to lose their letters from Hilda, it was certainly Aline, who ought to dig down into her pocket for the money. . . .

They weren't even letters! Lovejoy told herself as she lifted the baby out of his crib and carried him over to the open window to get a little more fresh air just outside in the lilac bushes.

They weren't her letters. And yet she was filled with pangs of guilt and terror. She knew who she was, too, because Hilda knew about her and Steve Quigley!

She stood there with Tom's baby in her arms and remembered how she had let Steve think that she didn't love Tom any more. . . .

She remembered how she had gone out into the night twice to meet him just for the excitement of the thing. And she remembered how she had let him hold her close to him and kiss her and tell her that he loved her.

How does a woman do things like that?" she asked herself. How did I happen to do things like that?" She seemed to be in that moment of fear and repentance that she would give half her life to have them undone.

Aline came walking into the room with her finger on her rouged lips. Behind that warning finger she was smiling.

Sh! I've got it all fixed!" she whispered. She pulled a pencil from over the letters and the wire, and I'm going to write her a check for a hundred dollars. Where do you keep your ink and pen?"

Five minutes later Hilda was out of the house, taking her long strides and the telegram in her hands a second. Then she began to tear them up.

"It was funny that she had those letters here," Lovejoy mused, "just before you came. And she told me that she had them in her trunk at her girl friend's house. Do you suppose she has them more by any chance?"

Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

AFTER the war was over Lincoln went into Richmond.

It was no march of triumph. Weary and quiet, he made his way through the deserted streets, seeing with fortunetold friendliness all that peace had cost. In the neglected fields negroes grubbed lazily.

"Freedom'. . . it was only a word to them. Their bodies might be free, but the slave habit held. They still were bound in chains.

So Lincoln thought, watching with weary eyes. Suddenly one of the negroes recognized the tall, stooped man. And instantly gave cry that Father Abram had come! They gathered round him, their dark faces straining up to his.

Elsie Robinson

What could he give them that would straighten their hard spirits? What could he offer them that would set them really free?

Out of his own nakedness he found the words.

Gently he called them "children"—told them the war was done. And then—

"LIBERTY IS YOUR BIRTH RIGHT" he cried "GOD GAVE IT TO YOU . . . TRY TO DESERVE THIS PRICELESS BOON.

He died. The years die, too. But still the war for freedom knows no end. Each man must fight that war within himself . . . fight to "deserve" his own self-won hands.

Fate can give you love, success, a job, a home, good laws to keep you safe . . . BUT ONLY YOU CAN BREAK THROUGH THE OWN CHAINS.

LIBERTY IS YOUR BIRTH RIGHT . . . WIN IT BACK!

TELL IT TO ELSIE.

REMEMBER your first job? When all your fingers were thumbs.

And you couldn't seem to hear what folks said with those typewriters and adding machines and what not, clacking in your unaccustomed ear?

Then maybe you'll know something about Mattie's Big Trouble. Read her letter:

"Dear Elsie:

"I've just got to tell someone the way I feel. I'm so discouraged! Today I got fired, and it just burns me up. Of course they said it was because business was dull, but I'm sure that's just an alibi, and they're letting me go because they don't like me.

The work I did was easy, all except running the telephone switchboard. I was expected to do that without any training. I'm one before, and I just couldn't hear well over the 'phone at all. There is such a clatter in the office when all the typewriters and adding machines get going. I don't think it's fair to expect so much. Do you?

"Oh, Sally! The name of getting fired! I just can't stand it.

"The other girls probably are laughing at me. If I could just get another job where they could see me make good!

"Please help me!

"MATTIE"

Pile out of it, kiddie!

Wipe your chin and powder your nose and take a grip on life. The first laughing at you? You're imagining it! Losing a job is just part of the day's work to any regular worker. You'll probably lose a dozen before you hit your stride. So stop feeling the world has done you a dirty trick, and sit down and do some straight thinking.

Suppose you look at it from the boss' angle. If he has hurt your feelings, believe me, sister, you hurt his, too. Bosses have sad and pocket books are a lot more important in business than feelings.

Suppose you hired somebody? Would you keep on an untrained worker who hadn't paid the price by striving, and let that worker waste your time and money through her inefficiency? I'll bet you wouldn't. You'd expect value's worth, and if you didn't get it, you'd let that employee out pronto!

Well, that's the way your boss feels. And you will presently find that the whole world agrees with the boss.

You'll just have to dig in and get the goods. There's no other way to escape the bitter humiliation of failure.

Mrs. Beeckman's Etiquette

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. When a half of a hard-boiled egg is served as an appetizer, should it be eaten with a small spoon or small fork?

2. I always eat olives with my fingers. Am I correct?

3. When they are passed around should I take up a few in my fingers or use a fork?

4. Is a slice of lemon ever passed. I always take a slice with me fingers as daintily as possible. Is this correct?

CONSTANT READER

1. It should be eaten with a small fork.

2. Yes. Nibble the olive in the fingers and then put the olive pit on the plate. Do not take the pit into the mouth and suck it, and then take your fingers. The point is to keep it always in the fingers.

3. If a serving utensil is provided with the olives—the regulation serving spoon or any other convenient utensil for taking the olives from the glass—this should, of course, be used. Otherwise, we must take the olives, one at a time and not more than two, in our fingers and deposit them on our plate.

4. It is customary, and as a matter of fact I have never seen it omitted—to place a very tiny fork for the serving of the lemon slices. I think that you will find that one will never have to take the lemon slices in your fingers.

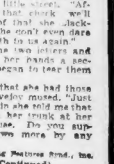
The Real Truth

By ELINOR GLYN

NOW I want my Miss Nobodies of Nowhere, by their own house sense and systematic study of the technique.



Elinor Glyn

to become experienced women, ready for the Prince Charmings who may come their way. They must be. For the small homes by being very polite and considerate, doing what duties they have to do cheerfully and to be continually on the alert to learn. They must read much, for the world is full of slapstick young women or college pranks, who have not the beautiful cultivated English, and they must learn to pronounce properly and to use grammar. In many of the magazines there are charming and refined articles and stories, but they must be read. And correct sense and distinguish which these are.

They must learn to eat properly and not use the wrong implements, or hold them in the wrong way, and they must learn to dress as they speak, so as not to be led into a stupid or rough imitation.

Each day they should try they read will teach them something and open a new door to a vaster vista. And if you are wise you will laugh when they remember what they were and what they are now.

The highest degree at our college will not turn a girl into an "exquisite" woman, or even a lady. She has to learn by gentleness of voice and manner; artless politeness, which, in its highest form, springs from a kind heart, and in its development shows self-confidence, but humility, consideration for others without gush, and a fine sense of what is right and not to do. If all this seems too difficult, girls, then just stay where you are and be content in the herd!

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

HAPPY endings, how we love them!
Though the realists deplore
Plays and stories brimmed with gunshine,
Still the people call for more!
True artistic worth, they tell us,
Lies in deeds of grime and gloom,
But the ordinary mortal
Likes his fiction full of bloom.
Happy endings brought us gladness
In our days of fairy tales,
Knights who saved each lovely princess,
Ships outriding all the gales.
And today, despite the critics
And their preference for doom,
Still the ordinary reader
Likes the fiction full of bloom.

$71,775,000 IN NEW YORK LIFE DIVIDENDS

President Darwin P. Kingsley, of the New York Life Insurance Co., in his annual message to policyholders, commenting on the $110,000,000,000 of life insurance in force in the American and Canadian companies, of which total about 1-15th is in the New York Life, says:

"Let me show you how vital these $110,000,000,000 are. Back of these pledged billions lie three great forces.

"First—the nearly $19,000,000,000 in cash and securities in hand.

"Second—the 20,000,000 people who have contracted, directly or indirectly, to pay future premiums.

"Third—the power of compound interest.

"Together, they make that $110,000,000,000 the most vital and useful force in all society.

"Now try to visualize what is coming. Outstanding insurance will become $200,000,000,000, $300,000,000,000, possibly much more, but it will always have those three great forces, the first two corresponding, by increased, behind it. Because of its peculiar relation to the weaknesses and needs of human life it is and always will be worth more than a like sum in cash.

"For 1930 the company's dividends to policyholders will amount to over $71,775,000. New insurance in 1929 totaled over $953,000,000. On December 31st the company's insurance in force was over $7,268,000,000, while its resources amounted to over $1,685,000,000, invested chiefly in bonds and mortgages.

WABASH SEEKS BIG ISSUE

Washington, Feb. 12 (INS)—The Wabash Railroad today asked the Interstate Commerce Commission for authority to issue $17,867,000 of refunding and general mortgage 4½ per cent gold bonds.

At the same time the road asked the commission to authorize a previous order in order to permit it to pledge 177,900 shares of the common capital stock of the Norfolk & Wabash Railroad as collateral security for short time notes.

The Wabash said that it had purchased this stock for the purpose of protecting its position in the eastern trunk line situation.

"It proposes to hold this stock for such purpose and does not desire to dispose of any part of it, but aims to use it for operational purposes. The commission's order stipulated that this Lough Valley stock should not be sold without the commission's consent.

FOREIGN TRADE PROMISING

Chicago, Feb. 12—Foreign business of Foote Brothers Gear & Machine Co. is very promising according to a statement today by W. B. Davis, president. Seventy per cent foreign orders is a sizeable one for road machinery, placed by General Electric International Co. through its South American agency. This latest order is a repetition of sales made previously to General Electric International, Mr. Davis said.

Foote Brothers Gear & Machine Co. manufactures a complete line of every description for all types of machinery under the trade name "Lo-Swing" transmissions, and also road machinery in its Chicago and other plants. Stock of the company is listed on the Chicago Stock Exchange.

U. S. Stocks of Lead Decline in Month

Total stocks of lead in the United States and Mexico on January 1, amounted to 131,566 tons, as compared with 161,660 tons on January 1, 1929, according to the American Bureau of Metal Statistics.

Receipts of lead in the month ended December totaled 76,645 tons, as against 72,900 tons in December, 1928.

Total receipts for the year of 1929 amounted to 905,778 tons, as compared with a total of 908,601 tons in 1928.

Contented Workers Made by Oldsmobile

Contented workmen produce better merchandise, is the opinion of Oldsmobile-Viking officials. Following this idea, all of the new factory buildings recently completed by the manufacture of Oldsmobile and Vikings are provided with maximum light, heating and ventilating systems and are designed to give ideal working conditions.

U. S. Hoffman Net Declines in Year

U. S. Hoffman Machinery Corp and subsidiaries report a net income for the year ended December 31 of $551,834 after interest, Federal taxes, amortization, etc., as against $753,243 in 1928.

Net income for the year is equal to $2.62 a share earned on 222,203 no par shares, as compared with $4.29 a share in the preceding year.

Longest Single Span Embodied in New Bridge

Results of Five-Day Week Differ; Warmth Plays Part in Merger

By B. C. FORBES

NEW YORK, Feb. 12—An interesting discovery. Concerns much after a wage capitulation to workers demands for the five-day week but which insisted on the six-day week being restored, found that the abandoning of the week did not increase the output per worker per day. On the other hand, where the five-day week was granted without any cut in wages the result usually was that as much work was turned out in the five days as had been done in five and a half days.

B. C. Forbes

In the latter instance, the mental attitude of the workers naturally was favorable to their employers. And they increased their daily production without strain and without grumbling. Henry Ford had a similar experience when he raised wages.

The most remarkable bridge in the world, embodying by far the longest single span, is being erected across the Hudson river, between uptown New York city and Jersey. The staggering load this bridge will have to carry will be supported from outside of this wire cables. It was announced the other day that the work of supporting these strands for the two giant towers begins at 3 o'clock each morning because it has been found that the sun's rays which each wire is expand a whole inch with each rise of 10 degrees in the weather's temperature.

Not long ago, while visiting the plant of the Burroughs Adding Machine in Detroit, an official placed his hand on a thick steel bar and explained that the heat there applied would be sufficient to expand the bar enough to register. And sure enough, in almost the twinkling of an eye it did.

One of my smaller hobbies has a number of bars of some waxy substance which, for some reason important to him, I have never ventured to bend. But each time we strike them. One of his older brothers, after graduating from the Naval Academy, displayed his skill over the performance, demonstrated how to do the trick, and rubbed the bars between the palms of his hands until they softened, and then showed how easy it was to bend them in any way desired.

All these unrelated incidents somehow suggested to my mind the same lesson, namely that results can be obtained by warmth which cannot be attained by coldness.

An impressive illustration of this has been supplied by a recent important bank merger in New York.

Interests identified with both banks were keen to bring them together. But when those representing the larger approached the head of the other institution to indignantly announced that he would not consider for a moment any consolidation which did not keep him as its head. After pains and soon taken by both banks it was decided that he must head the combined institution or he would not join the arrangement.

The deal was finally made possible by the self-immolation of a very large number of officers of the institution. Because the latter was thinking of the benefits to its institution rather than only of himself he gladly volunteered to sacrifice his title.

Then, this happened. When the officers who had severed under the expected splurge in American business, according to speakers before the legislative committee on agriculture. All speakers favored adoption of legislation which would require poultry dealers to be licensed and under which a person purchasing poultry from an unlicensed person would be penalized.

In New Hampshire last year chicken thieves got the worst setback ever recorded when a law was passed forbidding the possession of poultry at night without a police permit. This is the season when broilers are being raised by the many thousands in New England. The importance of this industry can be judged from the fact that 90 per cent of the "broilers" sold in the great New York markets in the last year for which figures are available were raised in southeastern New Hampshire.

Traffic regulation problems are frequently easily solved, if a reasonable degree of intelligence is available. As we have frequently stated, members of Chambers of Commerce and other kindred organizations are greatly interested in effecting solutions, because they believe traffic must be speeded up as fast as is consistent with safety if we are to retain and expand such prosperity as we now enjoy.

Take the case of the Lynn motorist, who received a summons to appear in a New York City court, charged with a parking violation. If he had violated the parking regulations in Pittsburgh, he would have received notice simply to send a dollar bill by mail to the authorities. Receipt of the "blanket" fine would have settled the case to the satisfaction of all concerned. While visiting Pittsburgh several weeks ago, I was told the system worked to 100 per cent perfection.

One feature that will appeal to business men in the Pittsburgh system is the insurance of a uniform fine. "Time is money" was the advice of an early Bostonian, Benjamin Franklin, to a young tradesman." But all people do not receive the same amount of money for their time. One activist, summonsed to court, may lose a great deal more money, measured by the value of his time, than another. Besides the Pittsburgh plan relieves congestion of court dockets.

President Thomas Masaryk of Czecho-Slovakia, to which Boston contributes a banker as Minister, is evidently proud of his former trade. His "white herbdas" were ceremonially rated by the placing of a tablet near a blacksmith's forge. The tablet reads: "Work ennobles. Here the first president of this republic learned the blacksmith's craft." Well, two American Presidents, Fillmore and Johnson, were tailors. Many did menial labor.

The published statement that "Uncle Sam cannot insure his own buildings" is an error. The government does not insure federal buildings because Congress fails to appropriate money for that purpose. The Commonwealth of Massachusetts follows the example of the federal government. Practically public buildings are mostly built with ample open space around them to afford protection from fire in nearby buildings, and are also supposed to be of so-called fireproof construction.

Permanent business recovery is likely to be more rapid than from any previous recession this century, according to the latest business forecast by McNeel's Financial Service just issued.

McNeel's bids six important factors as making for quick gains, the groundwork for increased business activity:

1. Business men are now devoting their time to their work instead of to speculation.

2. The supply of money rates is so that there is plenty of credit available at reasonable rates for all lines of business.

3. Increase in the amount of funds available for such forms of investment as real estate mortgages, through the diversion of capital from the stock market.

4. The liquidation of the demand for bonds, with most of the new capital being raised for purposes which absorb material and labor.

5. The unification of effort on the part of business leaders upon the plan formed by President Hoover.

6. The little existence except in one or two industries, of any unwieldy inventories.

Such a setup of conditions, McNeel's concludes, "are not those which result in any long period of business depression."

INSTRUCTORS AT HARVARD IN DEMAND

By FRANK B. MELOON, Financial Editor

A recent flutter stock by Fred MacIsaac, formerly one of the Hentz writers in Boston, terrific in part around a young instructor engaged from the Harvard Business school to conduct operations in high finance. This situation is not confined to fiction, it seems, in real life.

DR. J. G. SCHAEFFER

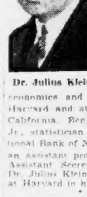
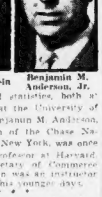
• • •

Dr. J. G. Schaffer, secretary of the San Francisco Stock Exchange, was formerly an instructor in economics and statistics, both at Harvard and at the University of California. Benjamin M. Anderson, Jr., statistician of the Chase National Bank of New York, was once an assistant professor at Harvard. Assistant Secretary of Commerce Julius Klein was an instructor at Harvard in his younger days.



Dr. Julius Klein



Benjamin M. Anderson, Jr.

If extended to other New England educational institutions, where professors, instructors and presidents have been made directors of railroads and industrials, the list might be made fairly long.

The Federal Reserve System is plainly engaged in a series of maneuvers designed to ease credit. The important question is: To what extent will credit be eased? That is why credit is so excited. The high stabilization around the current levels will be found to be the ultimate goal Boston bankers suggest.

The fact is evident that credit cannot be made easy for industry, trade and agriculture without also making it easy for the stock market. Helping the bond division of the stock market is seen by financial leaders as a primary necessity for aiding construction. This key industry would also be helped if some way were found to create a market for some of the issues put out as liens on realty projects during the many built upswing.

One brokerage house is confident the expected splurge in American Can will occur during the current quarter. Others think it will come later.

Thefts of poultry have been so numerous in Massachusetts for several years that they have forced many persons to quit the poultry business, according to speakers before the legislative committee on agriculture. All speakers favored adoption of legislation which would require poultry dealers to be licensed and under which a person purchasing poultry from an unlicensed person would be penalized.

FINE POINTS IN MODERN HOMES

By BETTY BONNELL

You've had that experience so many times: being invited in the winter or fall to a home that is so nicely done and so well heated, only to find that wherever you sat, a noticeable draft was sure to get at you. It's plain that someone had neglected to take care of those clearance cracks at the doors and windows where wind, rain and dust can get into the inside of the home without half trying.

Unless proper steps are taken, this condition prevails in even the best built homes, simply because no one imagines a small clearing and in order to open and close, and doors will warp or vary slightly under varying weather conditions. The only answer is efficient weather stripping, which is one of the best protective investments I can possibly suggest for the livable home.

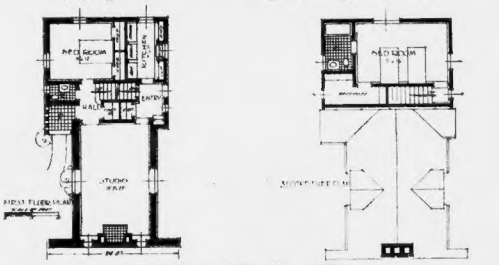
Naturally, weatherstripping should be made of durable, non-rusting metal such as zinc, brass or bronze and when applied to sliding windows, the loop tongue of the head strip should be made with accurate pressing to center a groove in the sash and make a weather-proof joint. Where upper and lower frames meet at the center these should be strong interlocking strips, while corrugations on the side weatherstrips should not only permit perfect contact, but also prevent sliding friction.

For casement windows I have seen some very efficient types of weatherstripping that I can highly recommend. Strips are tightly nailed to interlock at the head, center and sill, forming an effective seal against outside elements.

In ordering stripping for the front door, be sure that it not only acts as perfect protection, but also that it keeps the threshold attractive. There are any number of styles in solid highly polished brass that form perfect contact though ingenious interlocking devices. And as for inner doors, one of the best I've seen is a device that allows the strip to rise so as not to interfere with the rugs as you open the door; then closing the door, a felt strip drops silently to hug the floor and stop all drafts.

When your home carefully weatherstripped, you'll find that it's far easier to keep heat in the rooms during winter and that you'll cut your fuel bills. And as for preventing colds and discomfort caused by drafts—well, need more be said?

A Studio Cottage Costing $9300



UNIQUE SMALL HOME, WELL BUILT
By National Modern Home Bureau, Inc.

THERE is an ever increasing demand for the studio cottage. Those one and one-half-story houses, with their high ceilinged living rooms are becoming very popular with small families. This design should find favor among those who desire to possess a unique small home, built of substantial materials without and within. The house has been planned to fit comfortably on a 50-foot lot, leaving ample space on either side. The studio with its timbered ceiling, open fireplace, and two large windows is the principal feature of the house. One end of this is raised and lifted up with a gate-legged table for dining purposes. The kitchen is small and very convenient to work in. The stairs are compactly arranged. There are two good-sized bedrooms, a bath and a toilet room and an abundance of closet space. A cellar extends under the entire house and contains the laundry, heater, storeroom, etc.

The house contains 19,100 cubic feet and should be built for approximately $9300.

COMPLETE working plans and specifications of the house illustrated above may be obtained for a nominal cost from the National Modern Homes Bureau, Inc. Any technical questions regarding this house will be answered without cost or obligation. Address the National Modern Homes Bureau, Inc., Real Estate Department, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop Sq., Boston, Mass. Refer to House A-209.

NEW BUILT IN NEW NOTES ON BLANKETS

The ensemble idea has invaded the realm of bedclothes, the new plan being to have one heavy double blanket bound with satin ribbon and one blanket of lighter weave which can be used as a between-season blanket, and when cold cold weather comes as a third blanket in combination with the heavy pair. Of necessity the three must be alike to be really smart.

Colors in the ensemble sets are green and peach, rose and blue, apricot and gold orchid and apricot, brown and apricot the newest blankets showing one color on one side and a contrasting color on the reverse. And ribbon binding is in two tones, folded exactly so that a narrow strip of trim one side or three of its second color is visible.

Refrigerators in Color

We are bewildered but quite impressed to see new refrigerator in color. Red refrigerators with brilliant birds stenciled in white, green, mobilike refrigerators, pale blue refrigerators boasting bodies of conventional flowers. These seem to be in fine at all to what one can do to one's refrigerator if one feels like it. And we are further informed that much of the refrigerator decoration is being done in the homes with the aid of a can of lacquer, and a stenciling or decalcomania outfit. So if you long to express your personality in yet another direction, you might take up electric refrigeration painting.

Change Day-Bed Construction

The newest day-bed and the best-looking we have seen for some time is the type constructed with an inner spring mattress with a place beneath the spring for the bedding which in no way interferes with the comfort of the bed when used as a lounge in the daytime nor does it give it bulky lines.

"Good Light for Two"

A most convenient "twin bed lamp" comes with two complete lamps arranged to tilt as two people may want them and mounted on a single standard which occupies but a small space between twin beds. What a boon to those who love to read in bed but find when the usual bedside light is adjusted comfortably for one, its not for the other.

Hughes Appointment Ill-Considered; Confirmation Would Be Unfortunate

MR. CHARLES EVANS HUGHES is doubtless a "great and good man," but we believe his appointment to the office of Chief Justice of the United States was ill-considered and that his confirmation would be unfortunate and long regretted.

We do not undervalue the conspicuous public service of Mr. Hughes—his effective investigation of the life insurance companies, his independence of boss control while Governor of New York, his industry and ability during the five years he served as an Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court and the adequacy with which he filled the high office of Secretary of State. Nor are we unmindful that a lifetime devoted to the teaching as well as the practice of law, in which unusual aptitude has been re-enforced by close application, has brought him distinguished professional recognition.

The objections to Mr. Hughes as a Chief Justice of the United States lie quite outside of these considerations. They were justly expressed by Senator Norris, of Nebraska, in the Senate.

"They resolve themselves," said Senator Norris, "into two fundamental reasons why his appointment is unwise.

"First, Mr. Hughes resigned from the Supreme Court to become a candidate for President. After his ambitions in the political field have failed of realization, he is not only reappointed to the Supreme Court but promoted to Chief Justice.

"I concede a judge has a right to leave the judiciary and enter political life. But he ought not to be, by political power, put back again on the bench which he voluntarily left.

"Carried to its logical conclusions, it will mean judges who desire to follow the course pursued by Mr. Hughes will be influenced to disregard justice in rendering their decisions and cater to the wish of politicians in power.

"Second, we have reached a time in our history when the power and influence of monopoly and organized wealth are reaching into every governmental activity.

"Perhaps it is not far amiss to say no man in public life so exemplifies the influence of powerful combinations in the political and financial world as does Mr. Hughes."

We regard these objections as final and conclusive. Certainly they cannot be ignored or brushed aside.

The Supreme Court of the United States under the Constitutional definition of its function and in the light of our history, for over one hundred and forty years, is "the Holy of Holies" of our system of government.

The highest, ultimate, and most absolute standards are the only ones to be observed or which have application in the appointment of the members of this august tribunal. It is the last refuge and defense of the American citizen against the arrogance of power, the usurpations of privilege, the shortcomings of his elected representatives, and the injustices ofttimes of the law itself. It is the sentinel which guards the Constitution, and all our rights and immunities thereunder.

Its Chief Justice, no less than every member of the court, must be above the suspicion of bias or prepossession, whether conscious or involuntary, on the great public questions which come before him for decision, and above all things, he must be a man with nothing in his record to suggest the taint of politics in his rise to this incomparable post of trust and honor.

Granfield's Election

Rock-Ribbed Republican Massachusetts District Sends a Democrat to Congress

THE Republican organization has one explanation for what happened yesterday out in the Second District and the Anti-Saloon League has another but the fact remains that one of the most rock-ribbed Republican regions in Massachusetts has voted to send a Democrat to Congress.

There were three Republican candidates.

One, the "regular" nominee, by his record in the State Legislature an ally of the prohibitionists, had nevertheless declared that if elected he would favor the repeal of the 18th Amendment and, under certain circumstances, modification of the Volstead Act.

The gentleman's sound reason for this declaration was that in the referendum of 1928 the district went on record as overwhelmingly IN FAVOR OF repeal.

Because of his declaration, however, two other Republicans entered the lists, one on nomination papers, the other on "stickers." They called themselves "bone dry" Republicans. They had NO hope of election. Their ONLY purpose was to bring about the defeat of the "dry-wet" regular.

And what happened?

What happened was that the vote cast for William J. Granfield, Democrat, was greater than the COMBINED vote of Griggs the "regular," and Felker and Reid, "bone dry," Republicans!

For something with which to compare this astonishing overturn we shall have to turn back 20 years, to the capture of the old Cape Cod district by Eugene Noble Foss.

Congressman-elect Granfield, like United States Senator Walsh, who stumped the district for him, taunted the Administration at Washington with responsibility for what Mr. Granfield called a peculiar brand of prosperity bearing a mighty strong resemblance to what under other circumstances would be called "Democratic hard times."

About GRANFIELD'S stand on prohibition there was NO doubt.

As a member of the Massachusetts Legislature of 1918, the congressman-elect voted AGAINST RATIFICATION OF THE PROHIBITION AMENDMENT.

It was his opinion at that time, he says, that Federal prohibition would be impossible of enforcement and a grave mistake.

He is of the same opinion still.

The BAER Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

STAR Spangled Banner has been adopted as our national mumble.

So far as the words are concerned it is still an orphan.

Not one patriot out of a possible two knows the lyrics of this evaporated drinking chirp. Congress should appoint a national holiday in which preferred creditors could take singing lessons.

Most of us can get as far as "Oh say can you see?" After that we are nearsighted. From then on it's a string of dumb tums until exhausted.

The objection to Star Spangled Banner as a national song is that the melody was bootlegged from a vulgar old drinking yodel popular in the old days of witch burning and personal liberty.

You really should learn the words for they breathe defiance, revenge, bravery, reprisals and all the ginger-bread of combat without once mentioning indemnities or the collection of war debts.

Congress might have done worse than voting for this song. They might have sung it. With an extra chorus by an investigating committee.

There was quite an organized shillaber for "My County, 'Tis of Thee," which looked like an attempt to glorify the suburbs.

Other patriotic societies ballyhooed, "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean." This resolution was tabled until we discover whether our disarmament diplomats will hock the jewel or not.

We remember as a child singing the Spangled Banner in honor of President McKinley, who was reviewing the Spanish War troops. Some of the thousand kids got a bad start that day by commencing with, "It was down in the Lehigh Valley, where me and my people grew."

The trouble with the Star Spangled Banner is that it does not sound convincing when sung by school children.

And they're the only ones who know it.

All we know is if you don't stand up when the band is playing it some old lady knocks your hat off with an umbrella.

She doesn't know the words either. But she is standing up.

Now that it is adopted as our national reverberations, Congress should pass an amendment compelling us to learn the words. The only objection to the song is that it typifies the scream of an eagle rather than the mooing of a contented cow.

It's over a century since Francis Scott Key wrote the lyrics and five generations of lobbyists have lobbied on to learn the words. The only reward for their just dividends. Our slow recognition of its value must be due to the fact that only imported opera singers get paid for learning the words.

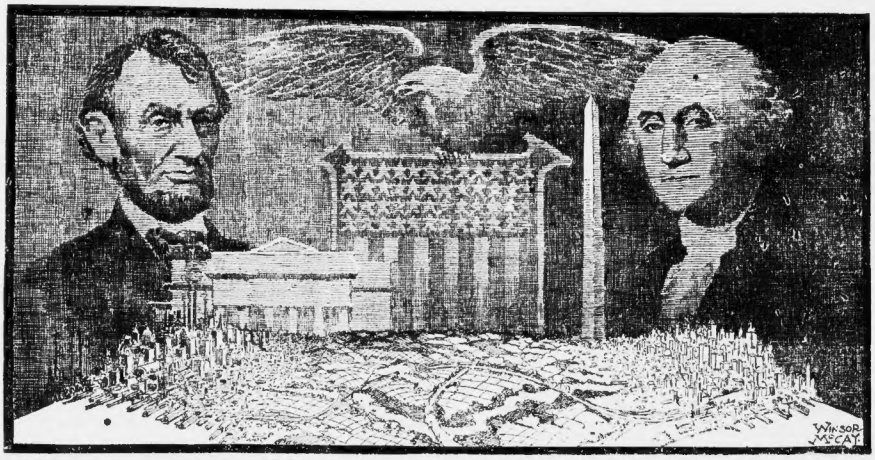
Lincoln's Birthday -:- -:- Our Two Great Men



THIS is the birthday of Abraham Lincoln, whose name will be remembered and honored as long as men are free.

All over the world these two men, greatest in the history of our country, are known and honored. It is necessary to say of them only that America is grateful to God for their sending, and the work they did.

In Lincoln, as in Washington, courage, patience and justice ruled. And Lincoln spoke for Washington, his great predecessor, as well as for himself when he said: "Let us have faith that right makes might; and in that faith let us to the end dare to do our duty as we understand it."

Guided by the example and inspiration of these two great men this country has risen to its present greatness, power, prosperity and happiness.

Guided by them, the nation's progress will continue.

THE AMERICA THAT YOU KNOW TODAY IS THEIR WORK.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Feb 12—A prosperous New York racketeer declares his most fruitful sucker list is a copy of that carefully selected volume "Who's Who." Those who grace its pages know little of flim-flamming and are often easily trapped by what is known as the "money racket."

The Social Register is also full of "pay dirt" along with lists of art patrons. This winter has seen an army of petty telephone racketeers who inspire terror by telephone calls of a mysterious nature. Nearly every writer of my acquaintance has been given a [illegible]

The formula is to implant suspicion of some hideous and immoral scandal. The stranger may telephone he overheard a conversation in a Broadway cafe that involves the intended victim. "I don't know you," explains the caller, "but I know your friends and you are in danger."

To the most innocent of persons [illegible] more than likely to cause worry. If he disdays fear over the [illegible] he is marked. Later there will be other telephone calls and as a general thing a meeting is arranged to talk things over and see what can be done.

The interview proves extremely vague. There is inference some scandal mongering journal has a flip the prospect has "been seen with a blonde." The publication of such rumors may be stopped for a small sum say from $50 to $100.

It is so fishy that in the light of cold reason is absurd. Men and often women selected for shake downs know they are being robbed but the amount is so small they would rather pay it than face a few days of needless anxiety.

The truth is no publication is going to scandalize a person without first talking to them about it. This applies even to scurrilous journals. The law of libel has too many sharp teeth for that. The proper method of handling such telephone calls is to hang up at once.

There are in New York three pseudo publications that make a living by extortion. They are as a matter of fact never printed. The method is to have a libelous story in type and a proof sent to the prospect. Generally he is scared silly and pays the price.

A psychologist observes that no person goes on an ocean voyage without nursing a secret desire for a touch of romance. Here's a tip for [illegible] with love and [illegible] She's full of promise. Half the people who cross the seas nurse this secret desire to lift heads from pillows now and then. That is all they ask.

The latest in white evening vests comes from London. The opening exposing the shirt front is cut square instead of oval and six black buttons close together hold it. The Prince of Wales has one, so its popularity is assured.

[illegible] Paul Whiteman is [illegible] the hand on a tour of the world shortly and afterward lay down his baton for all time. He has long looked forward to his prosperous ranch in Colorado and is also anxious to retire while at the top of the heap. Those close to him say he has for some time desired to try his hand at composing.

I was fortunate to meet Paul on the day he arrived in New York and was a staring rustic at his first appearance at the old Palais Royal. "If I can stay here a month," he said at the intermission "I'll be satisfied." That month stretched into 10 years.

H. G. Wells Writes on "The Science of Life"

In Collaboration With Prof. Julian Huxley and Geo. P. Wells

IN nearly all fungi the essential living thing is a web of delicate threads, burrowing inconspicuously into the material upon which it thrives.

H. G. Wells

The most conspicuous parts are the spore bearing structures. In the common toadstools and puffballs, and mushrooms for example, the umbrella or globe, or hat with which we are familiar is not the whole plant any more than an apple or a blackberry is a whole plant; it is merely the fructification, the sport-producing organ, and the essential living thing from which it sprouts is a white, silken web that creeps and digests unseen in the rich soil below.

The "mushroom spawn" from which edible mushrooms are grown consists of lumps of richly manured soil with this living web in it. And even a mushroom with its definite shape is not so firmly built as the body of a higher plant.

There is no brick-laying, so to speak, of its component cells; instead of the cells being mortared together into a solid mass, it consists of an interlacement of separate hyphastrands, like a lot of interwoven branches instead of a brick house.

On the whole the fungi, like the arthropods, are malignant towards mankind. Many of the parasitic forms cause havoc among cultivated plants.

The rust, smut and bunt of wheat, the diseases of potatoes, sugar-canes and beetles, the destructive mildews of roses and hops and grapes, these and many other plant plagues are due to moulds parasitic in the tissues of the sufferers.

A few attack our own bodies, producing ringworm and other itching affections of the skin and hair—even in civilized countries mouldy children are quite common.

The saprophytic forms may be troublesome too, there is for example, the dry rot that undermines our buildings, as there are the moulds that spoil our food. In favor of the fungi it may be said that they are among Nature's undertakers, helping in the decay and disintegration of dead things, and that one or two of them have edible, even delicious fructifications. But this scarcely balances the evil they do.

There is, however, a group of organisms, the yeasts which play an important part in human economy and are highly valuable to us. They differ in structure from other fungi and stand in an order apart. Their chemical reactions are distinctive and extraordinary.

They are single cells moulds; they thrive on various organic matters and they are cultivated because of their residues, their chemical excretions of which the most important ingredients are carbon dioxide and alcohol.

Yeast, as it is usually purchased is a moist powder. Every example of that powder is a microscopic globule of life. An ounce of brewer's yeast contains about five thousand million of them.

It has been known since the dawn of history that if dough is left about for a time before it is baked, the resulting bread is quite different from the unleavened bread produced by [illegible] dough as soon as it is mixed.

And it was known, too, that a little unbaked dough when already fermented, when that is if it was mixed with newly made dough, leavened the [illegible] lump. But it was reserved for Pasteur to make these facts intelligible.

The leavening of bread is due solely to yeast; it nourishes itself on the bread and the changes produced are manifestations of its life—the most important being that the carbon dioxide it releases gives the bread its light frothy aerated consistency.

Again, if fruit juices are left undisturbed for a time they undergo changes of flavor and become alcoholic.

This also is due to the action of yeasts (of other organisms, too, but chiefly yeasts) which live on the sugar in the juice and produce alcohol and carbon dioxide.

If the liquor is bottled while it is still raw the carbon dioxide is unable to escape, dis- [illegible] under pressure and a sparkling drink is produced. If not, the carbon dioxide escapes and a still wine or beer or cider results.

What Do You Know?

BOSTON'S ORIGINAL KNOWLEDGE TEST

Match correctly:

1 Amiable	Conciseness
2 Rampart	A small hill
3 Jetty	Defense
4 Brevity	Agreeable
5 Knoll	A structure to protect a harbor

Do you know:

6 What is a lady finger?
7 What are "sauhs?"
8 What poet wrote:
"Lord what fools these mortals be"
9 What State is just north of Connecticut?
10 What city is at the western end of Lake Superior?
11 From what is coke made?
12 What is a delta?
13 In a common fraction what is the number written above the line called?
14 How many pounds of flour in a barrel?
15 What is an angle less than a right angle called?

Answers to yesterday's test:

1 Purple-violet. 2 Pond. 3 Sword. 4 Devil. 5 John G. Whittier. 6 Iron mixed with other elements, such as carbon and manganese. 7 Denominator. 8 Knot. 9 Four equal sides and four right angles. 10 Eastern. 11 Half a woman and half a lion. 12 Eight years, 1801-09. 13 Lake Superior. 14 Manhattan. 15 Philadelphia, Pa.
